CONDITIONS IN MEXICO.

From the reports we receive from Army sources we are inclined to believe that the seriousness of the Mexican situation is not being appreciated. The fighting in Mexico is becoming of the most savage character. Quarter is seldom granted and the fighting is usually at close quarters, with a very large proportion of killed and a very small proportion of wounded. The northern part of Mexico is becoming exhausted of supplies and foreigners are getting out of the country. The rights of Americans and other foreigners are becoming less respected every day, giving rise to very bitter feeling on both sides. To indicate how a possible conflict may arise we will mention a few examples. At Piedras Negras, opposite Fort Duncan, the American Consul, Mr. Ellsworth, recently complained that some parties threw stones at the consulate. He has now been given authority by the State Department, whenever in his opinion it is necessary, to call on the commanding officer of the troops at Fort Duncan to send an armed force across the river for his protection. This action would be perfectly proper, but might easily bring about a conflict. Another example: In recent fights in Mexican border towns bullets have passed into American territory, killing and wounding American soldiers and citizens. Our troops have orders in case it is believed that such firing into American territory is not accidental to return the fire. A continuance of such fighting in border towns is expected shortly at Matamoras, Nueva Laredo, Juarez and other places.

Another example: In these combats in border towns the defeated force occupying the town usually attempts to retreat into American territory. Our troops have now orders to resist any such action on their part. This might bring about a three-cornered fight in which the defeated force would find itself between the victors and the Americans, the American force being in the line of fire.

At Matamoras on June 3 sixty federal soldiers fleeing from the Carranzistas arrived at the Mexican end of the international bridge, attempting to cross, but were stopped by the American commander, Captain Walker. As the Carranzistas were advancing a conflict was imminent in the presence of a large crowd of Americans, separated only by the width of the river, seventy-five yards. Bullets fired at the federals would have gone through the American force as well as people beyond. At the last moment Captain Walker obtained permission from superior authority to allow the defeated federals to cross to the American side and to safety. The capture of Matamoras by the Carranzistas is important, but there is likelihood that the federals, coming from Vera Cruz by water, will attempt to retake it. Matamoras lies in a bend of the river, surrounded, except on one side, by American territory. Bullets flying freely struck in Brownsville on June 3, as would shrapnel and shell had they been used.

Is it not time that some writer and publicist should discuss the question, "What is the matter with Mexico and how can it be remedied?" It will be found that the trouble is deep seated—peonage, non-taxation of land and drink, lack of a middle class, religious domination, lack of schools and education. These things have resulted in continuous disorder for nearly a hundred years, there having been over three hundred insurrections and revolutions and sixty rulers in Mexico during that time. Anarchy is normal. Law and order is exceptional, having only occurred during the administration of Diaz.

There cannot be another Diaz. Conditions make it impossible. The present is a revolt against Diaz and his methods. In the opinion of observers on the spot salvation of Mexico cannot come from within. It must come from without, and if conditions do not improve in the end we may be compelled to interfere if only to prevent some other Power from doing so. Our interests amount to one billion, the English interests $500,000,000, and French, German and other interests to $500,000,000. It is not merely the money value of these interests that is to be considered, but the disturbance in the lives of the many hundreds of thousands of foreigners in Mexico, who have a right to protection in the orderly exercise of their several occupations.

Any action we might be compelled to undertake under stress of circumstances would probably take the form of a protectorate as in Cuba, holding the government, reforming the laws and dominating the country until order is restored. Could the Mexicans be convinced of our good faith the military problem would be much less difficult. The French held the country with 40,000 men and 50,000 allied Mexicans. We could do the same. We should have no difficulty in obtaining the actual assistance of many Mexicans, both for civil and military purposes, provided the United States announced clearly that it did not propose to annex any part of Mexico, but did propose to establish a protectorate over it.

In case of intervention in Mexico it is to be hoped that the National Guard will not be employed except to guard the frontier, this being done by the Militia of those states near the border.

AN ILL-INFORMED CONGRESSMAN.

The interview by Representative S. R. Barton, of Nebraska, published in the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL of June 7, in which he designates the ordnance experiments with the Tallahassee as a "reckless expenditure of the funds of the Navy Department," shows how little consideration some of the Congressional critics of the Navy are giving to the important experiments that are being conducted by the Navy Department. Mr. Barton makes these criticisms in support of his argument for the establishment of a government armor plant, and if his knowledge of the armor question is of the same character as that which he shows in discussing the Tallahassee experiment, his suggestions are valueless. Evidently he has not given any serious thought to the problems with which the expert authorities of the Department are called upon to deal, yet he rushes into public print with a resolution for a sweeping investigation of the Navy Department and a demand for an expenditure of millions upon an experimental armor plate plant.

In the course of his interview Mr. Barton said: "I believe also that there has been a reckless expenditure of funds in the Navy Department. On a recent visit to the navy yard at Washington I was taken aboard the Tallahassee, and noticing a square patch on the gun turret back of her guns asked how the ship happened to weaken in this place, and was informed that in target practice to test the efficiency of a gun this ship was fired into and the shot tore a hole in her turret, but did not dismantle her guns. To fire this shot cost the Government about $600, and there was no serious consideration given to the fact that the shot might destroy this vessel, launched Nov. 30, 1901, and costing about one million dollars. It then occurred to me how little the people of this country, who pay the enormous expense of building this Navy, know of this extravagance. If the ship had been sunk or demolished little would have been said."

The reckless expenditure to which Mr. Barton refers was made to determine the effect of gun and torpedo fire against a modern vessel. The experiment was first proposed by the Bureau of Construction and Repair in October, 1907, and was carried out seven months later, in May, 1908. So far from being a "reckless expenditure," the plan was very carefully considered by all the bureau chiefs and by the Secretary of the Navy, and every possible precaution was taken to minimize the damage to the vessel and to so localize it that the cost of repairs would not be excessive.

The experiment was in three parts: (1) Firing a 12-inch shell at the Tallahassee's turret; (2) firing a torpedo against her bottom; (3) firing several shots at an experimental cage mast erected upon her deck. The object of the experiments was to obtain complete and accurate information, in a practical way, concerning the actual effect upon the internal fittings and other portions of a ship's structure of gun and torpedo attack under these existing conditions. The Tallahassee was selected for the test because she was a vessel of modern construction and could be prepared for the test and repaired after the test at a very much less cost than would have been involved had a structure been especially built for the purpose.

Information of such importance was derived from these tests that it has had a very great bearing on subsequent ship design and has enabled the constructive bureaus of the Navy Department to make great improvements in the design of battleships. It also led to making some important improvements in vessels already built. Surely such expenditure of funds is far from being "reckless"; even had the test resulted in demolishing a million dollar ship, which it could not possibly have done, it would have been money well spent.

Mr. Barton is further quoted as saying that he does "not want to be understood as opposing an efficient, well equipped Navy," yet that is just what he is doing by indulging in ignorant and reckless criticism of a perfectly justified expenditure of money in the conduct of an important and valuable experiment. His criticism seems to be due to his having accidentally learned on board the Tallahassee some disconnected facts regarding a matter which was given all due publicity in the press at the time. The exact results were, naturally, held as confidential by the Navy Department in order that the advantageous knowledge derived from them should not be given to foreign authorities.

THE WAR OF 1812.

In our issue of June 7 appeared a letter from Chief Justice William Renwick Riddell, of the Supreme Court of Ontario, Canada, in which he made light of impressment as one of the causes of the War of 1812, and said that he could not believe that anyone familiar with history could find that impressment "had much to do with that war." Singularly enough, in the Army and Navy Gazette of London of the same date, June 7, appeared in its leading editorial a review of the Chesapeake-Shannon naval duel in the War of 1812 in the course of which this statement was made: "The circumstances which gave a special significance to the battle were not, it must be said, entirely creditable to the British navy. The harsh and contemptuous manner in which British officers had in many instances behaved when enforcing the impressment system on board both British and American vessels had engendered a very bitter feeling. In the former case it drove many British seamen into the American Service, while among citizens of the United States it stirred up a spirit of animosity and personal rancor which led to counter charges of treachery and brutality the ill effects of which later generations have felt for nearly a century." Here the Canadian jurist will find that one of the leading military authorities of his time asserts that impressment stirred up a spirit of rancor which lasted for nearly a century. The lessons of this naval battle the Gazette says are striking. They prove that discipline and training are essential to superiority in naval battles. "The long series of single ship actions won in that war by the American sailors was due to the fact that the Americans had the better fought ships and the better disciplined crews. It was not that there were more ardor, resolution and courage on one side than on the other, but the better ships, the better seamen and the better gunners won. When it happened that these advantages were on the British side then victory fell to the British arms." This advantage was noticeable in the Chesapeake affair. Broke had commanded the Shannon for nearly seven years, while Lawrence had commanded the Chesapeake for only a few days. One had a crew long accustomed to habits of strict obedience; the other was manned by men who had just been engaged in mutiny. De la Graviere in his "Guerres Maritimes" finds in the lamentable fate of Lawrence "a new proof of the enormous power of a good organization when it has received the consecration of a few years' actual service on the sea. The two captains were equally renowned, the two ships had practically the same tonnage and number of guns, but there the equality ended. After that all the advantages of training and discipline were with the British captain, and skilfully and gloriously did he make use of them to hearten the English people after the numerous defeats of their ships.

The Treaty of Ghent, which was signed on Christmas Eve, 1814, and ended—officially—the War of 1812, was held up, as Truth reminds us, "for months by the unspeakable Castlereagh, who later cut his throat, in the hope that Pakenham's expedition to New Orleans would lead to the capture of that city and the control of the splendid domain west of the Mississippi ceded to us by Napoleon. The failure of the expedition, which was waiting in Kingston, Jamaica, for fleets, supplies and reinforcements, can be laid to the little Armstrong privateer in the harbor of Foyal. The English fleet bound for Kingston called for water at Foyal and the admiral undertook to capture the American one-gun privateer while he was there, regarding the neutrality of the port as a joke. When the fight was over the fleet was badly battered and the privateer sunk; but the condition of the fleet and the casualties to the crews necessitated a delay in the sailing, kept Pakenham in Kingston, gave Jackson time to reach New Orleans and save the day. The gallantry of the Armstrong privateer balked Castlereagh and saved us an empire."

The Chamber of Deputies has adopted by a vote of 386 to 165 the proposals of the French government for raising the $88,000,000 necessary to keep the time-expired soldiers for another year with the active army. Charles Dumont, Minister of Finances, explained that the government projected the issue of twenty-year three per cent. loans and also proposed to tax incomes of $2,000 and over, which it is expected will produce $4,000,000. The Minister promised to assist those families which had been placed in destitution by the men being kept for three years in the army instead of two.

A correspondent in Hawaii asks whether the 2d Battalion, 1st Field Artillery, now at Schofield Barracks, H.T., is considered as part of a colonial regiment. None of the organizations in Hawaii has been designated for permanent station in that territory. In arranging the foreign service roster of officers with a view to their assignment to duty in the Philippine Islands, service in the Canal Zone, Hawaii, Cuba and Alaska is counted as foreign service.

A striking feature of the annual report of the Bureau of Health for the Philippine Islands is the increase in the death rate among the Americans since 1907 in the last half-dozen years. In 1907 the rate was only 5.59 per thousand while for the fiscal year closed in June, 1912, the rate had grown to 16.53. A significant thing about this large increase is that the Bureau can give no explanation for it. The increase in the general death rate in the islands for the year was 3.82 per thousand, which made the rate 36.82. The increased rate corresponded to the period when the new Montalban reservoir was out of commission owing to accidents. The effect of bad water upon the death rate in Manila from the more common diseases is shown by a comparison of deaths before the supply was drawn upon from the Montalban reservoir and when the polluted Marikina River furnished the drinking water for the city. During the five bad-water years preceding 1908, the deaths from dysentery numbered 339; in 1911, two years after the new reservoir was finished, the deaths from dysentery were only 132; convulsions of children, before 1908, 1,921; in 1911, 500; meningitis, simple, before 1908, 450; in 1911, 71. The death rate among the government employees for the year was 4.84 per thousand. Among the American employees the rate was 7.71 while among the Filipinos it was 3.68. These figures apply to 2,852 Americans and 7,063 Filipinos. In the latter part of 1909, the Bureau of Health in the hope of reducing malaria in the Province of Ambos Camarines distributed gratuitously doses of quinine. Immediately the death rate from malaria fell by about 200 cases in the year. In 1911 this free distribution of quinine ceased and at once the death rate went up again to nearly the original figure before 1909. It is safe to say that we are on the threshold of the time when the expectancy of life in the Philippines will compare favorably with that in other parts of the world, and that it will be safe for commercial enterprise to make its calculations for the future without fear that disastrous epidemics with their attendant quarantine and other restrictions must be reckoned with. A number of photographs of hospital buildings and groups of the personnel of nurses and doctors appear at the close of the report. One of them shows the crude material with which the skilled physician has to work in educating the natives in medical science. It represents an Igorrote vaccinator. All this gentleman wears is a highly decorated campaign hat and a breech clout, the rest of his anatomy being as unclothed as Adam in the Garden of Eden.

A memorial to Capt. John Barry was unveiled at St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church in Philadelphia, Pa., June 14, 1913, with appropriate services. Assistant Secretary of the Navy Franklin D. Roosevelt attended and accepted the tablet on behalf of the U.S. Government. The oration was delivered by City Solicitor Michael J. Ryan. The tablet was the gift of the Wexford '98 Association of Philadelphia, composed of countrymen of the late captain, and was placed on the wall of the church. It is fourteen feet high and is surmounted by a Celtic cross. There was a parade of 25,000 school children in a dual celebration of flag day and the erection of the memorial. Captain Barry was born in Ireland in 1745, and as a peaceful merchant skipper brought hither from London the merchantman Black Prince, which under the new name of Alfred became in February, 1776, the flagship of our first naval squadron and put to sea under the yellow rattlesnake flag. His first fighting ship was the Lexington, with which, on April 17, 1776, off the Virginia Capes, he captured the Edward, the first British warship taken by Americans. In June he was commissioned captain, and in the fall of that year with the Effingham, while blockaded in the Delaware, he destroyed five British vessels. In 1777 he commanded the Raleigh in a memorable running fight with two British frigates, which ended in his sending her ashore and abandoning her to the foe. For this disaster he atoned in 1781, when with the Alliance on his outward voyage to France he captured one British ship and on the return voyage took two more in a single encounter. In 1782 he fought the last naval action of the war—an indecisive conflict with an unrecognized British ship off the Florida coast. In 1798 he commanded the United States (whose building he had superintended), with such afterward famous subordinates as Ross, Barron, Decatur, Stewart and Somers, and captured two French privateers. Finally, in 1799, he had the United States as the flagship of a fleet of ten, the Constitution among them, and took many prizes and battered the forts of Basse Terre.

The Cebu News-American, of Manila, of May 4, said that "supplementing a verbal protest made to Governor General Forbes during the recent visit of the chief executive to Zamboanga against the proposed presentation to the Moro people of an appeal for peace from the Sultan of Turkey, high priest of Islam, the people of Zamboanga and Jolo, including many datuus and headmen, have reduced their views to writing, and an imposing document containing their reasons for the protest is now on its way to the Governor General in Baguio. The chief objection raised to this means of cementing the friendship of the Moros for Americans and American institutions is the alleged personal unpopularity of the bearer of the message, Major John P. Finley, 28th U.S. Inf., who is now, according to reports from the United States, en route to the islands as special envoy from Mohammed V. Next in importance, but an objection which probably would not be made in other circumstances, is the resentment expressed by the representatives of a vast majority of the Moros at the assumption that a need exists for the intervention of even the Caliph. They feel that the affairs of the Moros, who are religious subjects of the Sultan of Turkey, have been sadly misrepresented. Included in the long communication are court records, personal letters, and translations of the verbal opinions of the Moro chieftains, all dealing with affairs connected with the service of Major Finley in the Moro district."

A correspondent of the New York Sun describes the difficulties encountered by Major John P. Finley in obtaining an audience with the Turkish Sultan. The audience, which was finally granted, took place in the great marble reception hall of Dolma Bagche Palace, on the European shore of the Bosphorus, and lasted for over half an hour. Major Finley was accompanied by an interpreter of the palace and by the first secretary of the palace. The Sultan shook hands cordially with his guest. Four chairs were ready for the occasion, an elaborate arm chair for the Sultan, a similar one facing it for Major Finley, and on either side of him a smaller chair for the interpreter and secretary, respectively. Major Finley read, paragraph by paragraph, an address which he had prepared, which the interpreter duly translated and, with eyes fixed on the floor, delivered to the Sultan. At the end of the audience the Sultan accompanied his guest across the great hall, taking most cordial leave of him. "I was extremely pleased with my audience with the Caliph of the Moslems," said Major Finley. "He showed an interest in the Moros above anything I had been led to expect. He often interrupted the interpreter to ask some question about these hitherto unknown coreligionists and was keenly interested in what is being done for them. He was especially glad to hear about the schools which have been established under the American Government."

Lee Threadgill, a business man of Eagle Pass, Texas, writes a letter to the San Antonio Express of June 8, in which he says: "I see the question frequently asked: 'What is the matter with our Army?' I think a brief summary of the excellent work they have done here and the conditions under which they are working will answer this. For months these men have been doing active field duty strung out along the Rio Grande for eighty miles in each direction, watching the most isolated spots, living miles from any human habitation and having their food hauled to them every fifteen days or so by wagons. At times, when they have run short of food in emergencies—through feeding other detachments on patrol or similar causes—they have subsisted for ten days at a time without ever bothering headquarters. In other words, they have lived under actual war conditions. In all that time not a single complaint about any man has been made by the ranchers whose land they occupied, nor has a single insanitary camp been discovered; every man has returned from his patrol in perfect health. The detachment left here at Eagle Pass has had charge of policing streets at night, of guarding the railroad station and the bridge to Piedras Negras (formerly C. P. Diaz). In that time they have searched thousands of persons, have seized many thousands of rounds of ammunition and numerous arms that Mexicans were trying to smuggle across, and have done efficient work generally. This work requires delicacy and diplomacy. It has been done in such able fashion that not a single complaint has been made to the local authorities about any abuse of his position by any soldier."

In making the demand "To Let Goethals Alone," the Boston Transcript of June 12 said: "The Isthmus is a region peculiarly in need of the autocracy of high intelligence. Its sanitation has been secured by methods essentially autocratic. When the canal shall be an actual highway between oceans the necessity for autocratic direction will by no means have disappeared. What has happened at Suez may occur at the Atlantic or Pacific end, or at both, unless there is a firm hand to enforce the law, order and decency on shifting polyglot gatherings, here to-day and gone to-morrow. The policing of the Zone will need autocratic direction to keep permanent the work of Goethals and Gorgas. The Zone lies midway between regions of volcanic politics. Its neighbors are respecters of force and they would be quick to detect any relaxation of supervision that afforded a chance for return to the bad old days of a fatalism that thought fever had to come and would come."

With reference to the article appearing in a recent issue of the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL in which is quoted a communication received by Secretary of the Navy Daniels from a Mr. C. D. Allen, of New York city, concerning the negro in the naval service as an enlisted man, a chief petty officer, U.S.N., writes: "Voicing the sentiments of the majority of enlisted men, I desire to state that the enlistment of negroes for general service should not be encouraged, but rather discouraged, as the presence of negroes on board ship in a crew composed of white men is not only objectionable to the enlisted man, but is a cause of dissension as well. I personally know of instances where much confusion and dissension have arisen, caused by the placing of negro petty officers over white men."

Leslie's Weekly, in reproducing the war pictures which it published fifty years ago, in its issue of June 19 showed the "final move that won Vicksburg for the North." With the picture were these words, which one can be well assured did not appear under it a half century ago: "General Pemberton tendered his sword on the Fourth of July, 1863, to the grim leader who had promised Lincoln to 'fight it out on this line if it takes all summer.'" This famous saying of General Grant was not expressed until some months later, when he had taken command of the armies of the North and was directing the operations against General Lee in Virginia.

The plan of crossing the Panama Canal after its completion by means of a tunnel in the vicinity of Paraíso Junction, has been abandoned on account of the excessive cost, and a committee has been appointed to report on a plan for utilizing car floats as a means of communication between the east and west sides of the canal after the removal of the dike at Gamboa. One of the locations, which will probably be considered in connection with this plan is that opposite Camp Elliott. The new Panama-Ancon-Balboa street car system will soon be in operation. Fifteen cars will be in service.

Col. J. N. Merrill, of the Gendarmerie Gouvernementale of Teheran, Persia, has written to the Provincial Governor of the Moro Province stating that it is planned to construct a prison, and requesting copies of the plans of the new San Ramon prison to be used as a model. Copies of the plans have been made by the engineer's office and have been forwarded to Colonel Merrill, who is well known in Zamboanga. Prior to going to Persia he was a member of the Philippine Constabulary and served for a long time as warden of Calarian prison.

INSTRUCTION FOR THE ERRING.

William C. Endicott, formerly Secretary of War, joins with R. Ade, Jr., Robert Bacon, Benjamin Ide Wheeler and Frederic L. Huidekoper in a circular from the Army League of the United States in which the offer is made to send to anyone applying to "Mr. Frederic L. Huidekoper, secretary of the Army League, Wilkins Building, Washington, D.C." a copy of "Upton's Military Policy" and the "Report on the Organization of the Land Forces of the United States." Officers of the Army and the National Guard will do well to encourage the circulation of these instructive documents among those who need enlightenment upon the subject of our criminal neglect of military preparation. In the circular referred to its authors say:

"The wars of the Revolution and of 1812 have been our only foreign wars with a first class Power. In the one we were aided directly by France, in the other by our enemy's diversion through the great struggle on the Continent; yet in the first the nation became bankrupt before the struggle was half over, and, in the second, although we enrolled a large number of men, something over 527,000, whereas the largest British regular force at any one time was only 16,800, yet our military operations were generally unsuccessful, and we saw 6,000 raw troops defending our capital flee with a loss of only nineteen before an actual attacking force of not over 2,500, and the capital abandoned to the enemy. We were wholly unprepared, trusting to the use of large numbers of uninstructed men, enrolled for a few months.

"Our wars with Mexico and Spain were with weak nations, even less prepared than ourselves, yet both were needlessly expensive in life and money. The Civil War was among ourselves and has little to do with such wars as may occur with first class Power. Many lessons might, however, be drawn from it of the misuse of resources, both in men and material, owing to poor methods resulting from lack of national attention to the subject.

"Fortunate ultimate successes in our wars have caused our people soon to forget the delays and disasters by which they have been needlessly prolonged. The historian has followed, and, glossing over our many mistakes, has dwelt chiefly on the glories of a few battles. Those of our citizens who may be called for the defense of the country should have had such elementary training and knowledge of the business of war as to save them from being needlessly sacrificed and to prevent their being useless, because of their not knowing how to be useful, until someone who does know how has expended upon them such an amount of time and energy as the country could ill afford to spare in an emergency.

"It is the purpose of this communication to bespeak your interest in an effort to remedy these defects in our military policy, not by any plan for universal military service, but by one that can be applied so that the young men it is hoped to bring under it will give only such small portion of their time as they can well spare, and which, while increasing their value as citizens, will make them useful as soldiers if need arises."

While we have been listening to the deceptive assertions of those who declare that this happy country is immune from war, we have, as a matter of fact, employed our Army and our Navy in our own wars and those of our neighbors for more than two-thirds of our national existence. The Revolutionary War from April, 1775, to April, 1783, in all branches of the military service stirringly employed 309,711 soldiers and sailors. Next we had the Northwestern Indian War, conducted by Generals Hamer, St. Clair and Wayne, from September, 1790, to August, 1795, in which there were engaged 17,696 men. Thereafter for eight years there was respite from war, but in July, 1798, the war with France began, and it continued to September, 1800, and 9,186 soldiers and sailors were put in the field and on the water to end it. The Northwestern Indian War, renewed under General Harrison, from September, 1811, to October, 1813, required only 910 white men to put it down.

Meantime we were "mixing it up" with Great Britain. From June, 1812, to February, 1815, and while we were thus busy with a foreign foe we had domestic troubles on our hands, from July, 1813, to August, 1814, with the Creek Indians in Alabama, necessitating the use of troops numbering 13,781. Following the war of '12 there was a breathing spell of near tranquility, but in November, 1817, to October, 1818, we were in the Seminole, or Florida and Georgia Indian, War with 6,911 Federal uniforms. Then really there succeeded an era of relief from strife for a decade, until the Winnebago expedition, called the Le Fever Indian War, broke on the lull in 1827, in June, and until September of the same year 1,416 soldiers were busy in restoring the status quo.

Again in 1831 soldiers had to be called to the colors in the Sac and Fox Indian War. It is not known how many were required to close it. The Black Hawk Indian War was from April to September, 1832, and 6,465 soldiers had to be sent against the redskins to conquer them. From 1833 to 1839 the Cherokee disturbance brought into actual service 9,494 militiamen and volunteers. The Seminole or Florida War lasted from 1835 to 1842, and 41,422 soldiers engaged in it. From April, 1836, to September, 1837, the Sabine Indian disturbances on the southwestern frontier employed 4,429 fighting men. A second Creek Indian disturbance in Alabama in 1836-7 required 13,418 rifles to settle it.

Then came the Arroostok and Canada frontier disturbances, known as the Patriot War, in 1838-9, a small affair, which 1,500 soldiers successfully disposed of. The Florida war with the Seminole Indians began in 1842 and ended in 1858. While it was being waged war with Mexico was conducted from April, 1846, to May, 1848, and in this time there were in the field and on the ocean, in behalf of the United States, soldiers and sailors to the number of 112,230.

The Cayuse War was in Oregon and was finished by 1,116 Oregon volunteers. This was in 1848. It required 6,465 soldiers from 1849 to 1856 to put an end to the Texas-New Mexico Indian War. From 1849 to 1855 the Apache, Navaho and Utah War kept 2,561 soldiers busily employed. The Yuma expedition, in 1851-2, was short-lived, and 266 Regulars saw it to a conclusion. The Utah Indian disturbance from 1851 to 1853 necessitated the use of 530 Volunteers and ten Regulars. The Oregon and Washington Indian War was of more magnitude, and was in evidence from 1851 to 1856; 7,229 soldiers had to be mustered before it would down.

There was no war to which the United States was a party after Appomattox for a generation. The Army frequently was under orders, and the National Guard of various states often was out against striking railroads or coal miners. Again the cherished, unbroken peace was espied; the uselessness, as well as heavy expense, of an Army and Navy, although both were inconsequential compared with European preparedness for defense, was accentuated by orators and writers, and societies adopted resolutions congratulating Americans on their aversion to war and their immunity from it, vouchsafed by a kindly Providence, when suddenly, in 1898, we declared war against Spain at the behest of and amid the acclaims of the people from ocean to ocean and from Superior to the Gulf. Incidental to this controversy was the Philippine insurrection and the China relief expedition. Into these enterprises the country sent 459,474 soldiers, sailors and marines.

And these little things officially styled by the War Department "wars"—Indian campaigns—had been wholly overlooked: Campaign in southern Oregon and Idaho and northern parts of California and Nevada, 1865-68; campaign against the Cheyennes, Arapahoes, Kiowas and Comanches in Kansas, Colorado and Indian Territory, 1867, 1868, 1869; Modoc War, 1872-1873; campaign against the Apaches of Arizona, 1873; campaign against the Kiowas, Comanches and Cheyennes in Kansas, Indian Territory, New Mexico, Texas and Colorado, 1874-1875; campaign against the Northern Cheyennes, 1878-1879; campaign against Nez Perces and Bannock War, 1878; campaign against the Ute Indians in Colorado and Utah, 1879; campaign against the Sioux Indians in South Dakota, 1890-1891.

Then the United States, because righteously provoked to do it, has intervened in a number of Central and South American republics; and no one can accurately guess when we may be marching into old Mexico. And then we have 16,000 Regulars in the Philippines, not as local policemen, but for notice to the rest of the earth that we are ready to protect them against all outsiders. We have Pearl Harbor in the Hawaiians, which we are fast making impregnable, and the garrison there is no mean force. Soon the Panama Canal will be completed, and from 8,000 to 25,000 blue and khaki uniforms will be stationed there simply as an evidence of good faith, and, at the same time, good sense.

AEROPLANES IN WARFARE.

From the U.S. Army Signal Office we receive notes on the employment of aeroplanes in warfare, by Capt. A. G. Fox, Royal Flying Corps (British), June, 1913.

STRATEGICAL RECONNAISSANCE.

At the commencement of a campaign it is imperative that the G.O.C. be furnished with early information as to the position and size of the enemy's column. This is the time when the employment of aeroplanes will be of the utmost value; they can go straight out and locate the main bodies of the enemy without being stopped by his protective troops and without troubling about his cavalry, except to locate it. This will leave the independent cavalry free to perform any special tasks assigned to it, or it may even be dispensed with to a large extent.

For this purpose a squadron of aeroplanes with a large radius of action will be required. This will be best furnished by a squadron of fast single-seated monoplanes, which will have to trust entirely to their speed to escape from the hostile aircraft. Their chief duty will be to locate the hostile cavalry's bivouacs each evening. During the day they will probably not be able to get any information that they may obtain back into the hands of the commander in time to be of use.

A squadron of two-seater monoplanes would probably be the most suitable, of a type easily transported, so that in the event of the weather being too bad for them to fly they can keep up with the cavalry by road.

TACTICAL RECONNAISSANCE.

In the reconnaissance of a position aeroplanes will be of considerable assistance, to learn the extent of the position and also to locate the enemy's general reserve and cavalry; two things difficult to locate by other means. But they are not suited to the actual reconnaissance of the ground, as it is very difficult to tell from up above what points on the ground are mutually visible.

In the attack of a position, during the actual attack the movements of troops in the firing line will be too detailed to lend themselves greatly to aerial observation, but the aeroplanes will be able to note the general trend of these movements and of moves of the hostile general reserve and cavalry, early information on which points is of the greatest value. They will also, owing to movements of transports to rear, be able to tell him of any signs the enemy may show of weakening any part of his line or of retiring. If the enemy is defeated they will be able to give invaluable information as to his lines of retreat. At this time also the aeroplanes might be employed in dropping bombs. The moral effect might conceivably greatly assist the cavalry in turning a retreat into a rout.

In the defense of a position the chief duty of the aeroplanes will be to locate the enemy's lines of advance, and thus prevent an unexpected decisive attack. They must also carefully watch for any signs of an outflanking movement on the part of the enemy. During a contested advance or retreat the aeroplanes can be most usefully employed in the evening and early morning.

For all these duties, classified under the heading of tactical reconnaissance, the best type of aeroplanes would be two-seater biplanes, provided that there is sufficient supply of well trained observers. It has been fairly conclusively proved that, except in very bad weather, a good pilot alone will bring back quite as good information as a partly trained observer. These machines do not require to be very fast, but should be able to climb rapidly and to land at a slow speed. They will have to trust to special fighting aircraft of their own side for their protection from the hostile aircraft. They might carry light armament, but as their role should be strictly confined to reconnaissance this would probably only hamper them.

ORGANIZATION.

At present the idea is to keep the aeroplanes as army troops under the C-in-C., who will allot them to divisions as required, but the eventual organization may be somewhat as follows:

- (a) Army troops—Two squadrons fast single-seater monoplanes.
- (b) Cavalry divisional troops—One squadron two-seater monoplanes.
- (c) Divisional troops—Six squadrons two-seater biplanes, six squadrons fighting machines (one squadron of each per division); total, fifteen squadrons with the field army.

These numbers are taken with the strength of squadrons as at present, viz., twelve machines per squadron.

The total number of squadrons required would be considerably greater than this, as the wastage of war in this arm will be very great indeed, and it will probably be necessary to send out complete fresh squadrons during the progress of the war to replace those first sent out.

In conclusion Captain Fox puts forward a few suggestions as to the influence that aircraft will have on the conduct of warfare in the near future. It appears that the whole conduct of war will be a much more deliberate art than it is at present; quicker in time, but events will be more calculable and will be more accurately foreseen; war will be less of an art and more of a science. The elements of surprise will be removed almost entirely.

The character of the advanced guard will be modified as its duties will be confined almost entirely to those of protection, the aeroplanes relieving it of nearly all its reconnaissance duties. The advanced guard action will not be a sort of reconnaissance in force, but the first phase of the actual big fight, i.e., seizing tactical points, villages, etc.

It has often been said that aircraft will supersede cavalry, but Captain Fox thinks that this idea is fallacious and that they will prove to be the cavalryman's greatest friend, as by relieving him of his reconnoitering duties they will leave him free to carry out his still more important rôle, that of co-operation with the other arms on the battlefield. And also in the future we shall not have so many instances of a victorious army being robbed of the fruits of its victory owing to the horses of the cavalry being too tired to take up the pursuit and prevent the enemy rallying and reforming.

ARMY AVIATION IN THE PHILIPPINES.

From the Aviation School at Fort William McKinley, P.I., where Lieut. F. P. Lahm, 7th Cav., is instructor, we receive the following notes, sent on May 13, 1913:

Started flying March 24. Total flying time for seven days remaining, 6 hours and 19 minutes. Lieutenants Chapman, 7th Cav., Dargue, C.A.C., and Rich, P.S., were instructed in operation of machine. Sergeant Burge was also instructed in handling new duplicate control as he learned old control last season. Following is a summary of month's flying: Lieutenant Lahm flew with Lieutenant Chapman, 1 hr. 37 min.; Lieutenant Lahm flew with Lieutenant Dargue, 1 hr. 3 min.; Lieutenant Lahm flew with Lieutenant Rich, 1 hr. 33 min.; Lieutenant Lahm flew with Sergeant Burge, 26 min.; Sergeant Burge alone, 1 hr. 40 min.

For month of April, 23 hr. 45½ min.: Lieutenant Lahm flew with Lieutenant Chapman, 2 hr. 52½ min.; Lieutenant Lahm flew with Lieutenant Dargue, 2 hr. 18 min.; Lieutenant Lahm flew with Lieutenant Rich, 3 hr. 39½ min.; Lieutenant Lahm flew with Sergeant Burge, 1 hr. 13½ min.. Lieutenants Chapman, Dargue and Rich under instruction. Lieutenant Chapman flew alone, 41 min.; Lieutenant Dargue flew alone, 5 hr. 59½ min.; Lieutenant Rich flew alone, 4 hr. 39½ min.; Sergeant Burge flew alone 1 hr. 49 min. Lieutenant Dargue with Sergeant Burge for 15-minute flight.

Lieutenants Lahm and Chapman have been on fifteen days' leave. Lieutenants Chapman, Dargue and Rich have been practicing for pilot's test, and Lieutenant Lahm for military aviator's license. Lieutenants Dargue and Rich both qualified for pilot's license. They received regular F.A.I. test. On second landing Lieutenant Dargue landed within five feet of the designated point and Lieutenant Rich within two feet of point. Lieutenant Chapman was ready and expected to take the test any day, weather permitting.

There have been no accidents whatever this year, not even breaking a stick so far.

DECATUR'S FRIGATE THE PHILADELPHIA.

Lieut. Comdr. Richard Drane White, U.S.N., Naval Attaché at Rome and Vienna, as was noted in our issue of Jan. 18, made a report to the Director of Naval Intelligence at Washington as to the U.S. frigate Philadelphia, which for almost one hundred and ten years has rested in the sands at the bottom of the Libian Sea, off Tripoli. If legislation soon to be introduced in Congress by Representative J. Hampton Moore, of Pennsylvania, is approved, the ship may be raised and brought to America, an appropriation of $15,000 being suggested for the purpose. The plan was first proposed by an American war correspondent, Harold Sherwood Spencer, after the close of the late Italo-Turkish conflict, and strongly appealed to the patriotic and romantic sentiments of the Italian people. The newspaper of Tripoli reviewed in eloquent terms the gallantry of Lieut. Stephen Decatur, who, more than a century ago, boarded the captured Philadelphia with sixty men and officers and, "within half gunshot of the Bashaw's castle," succeeded in burning and sinking the frigate and in effecting the escape of himself and his men to the ketch Intrepid. He had been assigned to his perilous task by Commodore Edward Preble, commanding the U.S.S. Constitution, at anchor in the harbor of Syracuse, on the southern coast of Sicily, opposite to Tripoli.

Through the efforts of the American Consul General at Tripoli, John Q. Wood, permission for the raising of the wreck has been granted by Governor General Ragni, who personally aided the technical investigation conducted at the scene by Commander White. The latter was further assisted by William S. Riley, an Englishman who has been a resident of Tripoli for twenty-five years and who has manifested a lively interest in the project.

The wreck lies in about fifteen feet of water directly off the Spanish fort at Tripoli, and is in the path of a system of harbor improvements contemplated by the Italian government. Divers who were employed by Commander White reported the whole wreck to be embedded in sand. They found the planking covered with copper in a state of partial decomposition and also found the remains of nails so corroded that they are nothing but hardened rust. Granting that the ship was forty feet in beam and 200 feet long, she must extend in the sand to a depth of approximately forty feet, and for a length of approximately 200 feet. It is believed that the best way to attempt to raise her is to dredge around her and inside her as much as practicable and then raise her with floats and chains, if practicable, intact; otherwise, in sections cut adrift before being lifted. The Ditta Amalgia, an Italian engineering firm which has the contract for the harbor improvements planned by the Italian government, provided Commander White an estimate of $12,000 for the raising of the Philadelphia and the placing of her on the beach at Tripoli. In addition there would be the cost of conveying the material recovered to the United States.

Recalling the history of the old frigate Philadelphia, H. C. Plummer in the Scientific American says: "From the date of her launching at Philadelphia, Nov. 28, 1790, until the hour of her ignominious capture by the Tripolitans, Oct. 31, 1803, the frigate maintained a glorious record for the Stars and Stripes and the young Navy of the American Republic. She was the flagship of a squadron of thirteen vessels under command of Capt. Stephen Decatur, sr., on a cruise to the West Indies in 1800, in which she effected the capture of five vessels from the French. She sailed from Philadelphia on her third and last cruise, commanded by Capt. William Bainbridge, July 28, 1803, and on Aug. 26, 1803, shortly after she had reached the Mediterranean, she captured, near Cape de Gatt, the Tripolitan ship Meshboka, or Murboka, and recaptured from her the American brig Cecilia of Boston."

BULLETIN OF MILITIA NOTES, W.D.

It is decided that the record course for revolver or pistol shall be shot over but once. As much instruction practice may be given as is desired.

Neither transportation nor horse hire of a sergeant instructor of Cavalry on duty with the Organized Militia, during a tour of duty with the Cavalry of the Regular Army, can be legally charged against a state's allotment. Not being a member of the Organized Militia, no part of the appropriation for the support of the Organized Militia can be expended in his behalf.

Information has been received from the Chief, Quartermaster Corps, that field desks pertaining to that department are now ready for issue to the Organized Militia.

A pamphlet by 1st Lieut. John B. Barnes, 5th U.S. Inf., entitled "Elements of Military Sketching," has been adopted as a War Department publication and will be supplied to the Organized Militia.

The following has been submitted for decision: "Whether, in firing rapid fire during the record practice course, as detailed in Par. 321 of the new Militia Firing Regulations, it is intended that the bayonets be fixed." In answer thereto the reply is made that that part of the Firing Regulations which prescribed the above is not as yet published and is subject to change. At present the ruling is the bayonet shall be fixed.

Certain officers of Militia were allotted public quarters while taking the course in the Army Field Service School for Medical Officers at Fort Leavenworth. Not being satisfied with these quarters they provided their own quarters and claimed commutation, on the theory that they were entitled to commutation or quarters in kind, as they might elect. The J.A. General decides that they are in error as to this. General Crowder quotes the law in the case and says: "It is apparent that Regular officers under the circumstances of these Militia officers could not receive commutation of quarters, and by the same token the Militia officers cannot receive it. It is well established that an officer cannot acquire right to commutation of quarters by refusing to occupy quarters assigned to him." In view of this opinion hereafter when a Militia officer reports for duty at a service school he will, immediately upon his arrival, make written application to the commanding officer for quarters. The application will be accompanied by a copy of the order directing him to report at the school.

Sergeants detailed for duty with the Organized Militia will wear the uniform of the arm of the Service from which they are detailed; that is, sergeants of Cavalry, for example, detailed for duty with the Organized Militia, although transferred to the Infantry, will wear the uniform of the Cavalry.

THE PHILIPPINE LIBRARY.

The memorial collections of the circulating division of the Philippine library at Manila are among the most interesting features of that institution. These memorial libraries, or alcoves, are ten in number. The first was introduced in 1900, and was the Egbert memorial to commemorate that gallant officer, Col. Harry C. Egbert, 12th U.S. Inf., who was killed at the head of his troops in the battle of Malinto, March 26, 1899. His friends in his native city, Philadelphia, originated this tribute to his qualities as citizen and soldier. It contains books pertaining only to American history. The Miley memorial was presented in memory of Lieut. Col. D. John Miley, U.S.V. (first lieutenant, U.S.A.), who served in the Philippines and died there in 1899, by his widow and friends in the United States. These books are on general subjects and are the best editions of choice volumes. The Ward Cheney memorial is a tribute to Lieut. Ward Cheney, 4th U.S. Inf., who died of wounds received in action in the Philippines on Jan. 7, 1900, and was presented by his family. The books in this alcove are mostly of travel, and are faithful reproductions of those "silent friends" read by the brilliant young officer.

The Liscum memorial was the gift of Mrs. Liscum in memory of her husband, Col. E. H. Liscum, 9th U.S. Inf., who was killed at Tientsin during the Pekin relief expedition in 1900. General literature comprises most of these books. The Guy Howard memorial commemorates Capt. Guy Howard, A.Q.M., U.S.A., son of Gen. O. O. Howard. He was killed in action on Oct. 22, 1899, near Arayat, P.I., Island of Luzon. His widow is the donor of these volumes, which are of a miscellaneous character.

Gen. and Mrs. Charles R. Greenleaf on their return to the United States in 1901 sent the Greenleaf memorial to the library to commemorate the service of "Deceased Medical Officers, United States Army." It now stands as a tribute not only to his comrades of the Medical Corps, but also to General Greenleaf himself, who recently passed to the great beyond. This alcove is historical and especially strong in standard biography. Opposite to the collection a picture of General Greenleaf seems to keep guard over his generous donation. It was Mrs. Greenleaf who in the stirring days of 1900 in the Philippines with the aid of her husband founded the American Circulating Library of Manila.

The Red Cross Society of California has given a memorial alcove in memory of the members of the California regiment who had given up their lives in field and hospital. An Ohio chapter of the D.A.R. gave the Ohio memorial in memory of the soldiers who had joined the bivouac of the dead in the lands beyond the Pacific. This was followed in 1902 by a gift from the Virginia D.A.R., who paid the same loving tribute to the Virginia dead. The Montana Chapter, D.A.R., interested in this patriotic work by one of the original library trustees, Major George P. Ahern, U.S.A., presented an alcove in memory of the Montana Volunteers. These four society memorials are catholic in character, as they cover many divisions of human knowledge and represent what is best in literature upon specific subjects. All these gifts are marked with tablets of bronze or brass. To them have been added a bookplate for the Ohio alcove, designed by Mrs. Rath-Merrill, an Ohio D.A.R.; a bookplate given to the Egbert memorial by Mrs. Herman Hall; framed copies of each plate; oil portraits of Colonels Liscum and Egbert, presented by George C. Sellner, a member of the former library board; a crayon portrait of Mrs. L. M. Maus, formerly a member of the board, presented by Col. L. M. Maus, U.S.A.; and large photographs of Colonel Howard, Gen. and Mrs. Greenleaf and Colonel Egbert. These data are taken from a description of these memorials in the April Bulletin of the Philippine Library written by Bessie A. Dwyer, which, while written in an appreciative and patriotic tone, is woefully incorrect as to dates and titles.

ALEXANDER BOYD CUMMINGS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL:

The graceful act of acknowledgment of the Navy Department of the United States in honoring the memory of the late Lieut. Comdr. Alexander Boyd Cummings, U.S.N., by giving his name to a new torpedo destroyer to be launched at Bath, Me., in July next, was a most unexpected and at the same time most gratifying event to all concerned. The members of his family now surviving and resident in Philadelphia were quite unaware of the intention of the authorities to perpetuate the record of the deeds of the brave young naval officer, who was mortally wounded in the act of giving an order while on duty on board the Richmond, exposed to the fire from the Confederate fortifications during the operations against New Orleans. He refused to allow the surgeons to give him the assistance that would probably have saved his life, generously sacrificing himself in order that others of the wounded should receive the first aid. In the selection of a sponsor who is to launch the vessel the Department was materially aided by an incident, of no very great significance at the time, in the social life of Washington. A nephew of the late Dr. James Laws, U.S.N., while being entertained at dinner at his residence in I street, N.W., in December last, happened to notice a portrait of the officer in question, who, by the way, was a brother-in-law of the hostess, on the wall of the dining room. Being an artist by profession, he was naturally interested, and upon being informed as to the identity of the original mentioned to his hostess the fact of his acquaintance with a sister of the officer now residing in Philadelphia. This furnished a clue as to the location of the nearest relatives of Lieutenant Commander Cummings, and finally, through the efforts of Rear Admiral Victor Blue in correspondence with the dinner guest of artistic temperament, there resulted an invitation tendered to Mrs. Henry Beates, Jr., a niece, and the wife of Dr. Henry Beates, Jr., to act as sponsor for the vessel.

WEDDING GIFT TO MRS. SHEPARD.

The committee in charge of the wedding gift by 23,500 Enlisted Men of the Army to Helen Miller Gould, now Mrs. Finley J. Shepard, have received the following very appreciative letter from Mrs. Shepard, addressed to all the donors:

Lyndhurst, Irvington-on-Hudson.

To the Twenty-three Thousand, Five Hundred Enlisted Men of the United States Army who gave me a silver vase. Friends: How can I ever adequately express my appreciation of the wonderful wedding gift presented by your committee, Sergeant Jensen, Sergeant Maher and Mr. Perkins. It is very very beautiful, and I am especially glad that it bears the insignia of the various divisions of the Service, and also I am delighted with the inscription, but more than all do I prize the friendly thought that I know so well accompanies your splendid memorial.

For several years—since the Spanish War—you men of our Army have made me realize and value your friendship. With many thanks and best wishes for each one, I remain, Sincerely your friend,

HELEN GOULD SHEPARD.

Memorial Day, 1913.

The enlisted men of the U.S. Army, appreciating the many kindnesses that they had received from Miss Helen Miller Gould, decided to present to her upon the occasion of her marriage a gift which would be appropriate and an enduring evidence of their good wishes. Never before in the history of the Army had a gift been made by the enlisted men as a body, and they wished to present Miss Gould with something made especially for the purpose. There was not sufficient time before the marriage to gather the subscriptions and make the vase, so that the actual presentation was deferred until Mr. and Mrs. Shepard's return from Europe.

A subscription limited to ten cents for each man was opened. Twenty-three thousand five hundred men contributed to the fund, which has been used for the purchase of a silver and gold rose vase. The vase is a little over twenty-three inches high and stands upon a green marble base. It contains 260 ounces of silver and ninety-eight pennyweights of gold. Around the body of the vase are twelve panels, containing the following devices in gold: Infantry, Cavalry, Field Artillery, Coast Artillery, Ordnance Department, Engineering Corps, Hospital Corps, Signal Corps, Quartermaster's Department, Commissary Department, Music Department, Recruiting Stations.

Above the band of ornaments formed by the panels and chased laurel leaves is the inscription in applied gold letters: "Presented to Miss Helen Miller Gould by 23,500 enlisted men of the United States Army as a token of appreciation. 1913." Above the inscription is a band of chased ornament of ribbons that are woven about a succession of applied gold beads. From ornaments attached to the mouldings below the panels are hung chased festoons of laurel leaves. The work upon the vase has been done with the most careful attention to details.

The vase was presented to Mrs. Shepard by Sergt. Major A. C. Jensen, Coast Art. Corps, stationed at Fort Terry, N.Y., and 1st Sergt. E. J. Maher, 125th Co., Coast Art. Corps, same station. Mr. C. C. Perkins, of New London, Conn., accompanied the presentation committee as auditor of the account. The committee was received by Mrs. Shepard at Lyndhurst, Irvington-on-Hudson, 3:30 p.m., May 28, 1913. Mrs. Edwin Gould and Mr. and Mrs. Ree were present on the occasion.

During the competition year ending June 30, 1912, none of the gunboats on the Asiatic Station were able to conduct target practice on account of the conditions obtaining in China.

The trophies for gunnery will be assigned to the leading vessels in each class and commendatory letters will be written to the commanding, executive and gunnery officers of the successful vessels.

RESOLUTIONS BY THE 19TH INFANTRY.

At a meeting of the 19th Infantry Branch, U.S. Infantry Association, in camp at Fort Crockett, Galveston, Texas, June 12, 1913, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, Conditions of the Service have necessitated the departure of Capt. George H. Shelton, U.S.A., from Washington, D.C., where he has served the United States Infantry Association as its secretary and treasurer, and as editor-in-chief of the Infantry Journal,

Resolved, 1. That an expression of our sincere appreciation of his faithful, efficient and intelligent performance of the duties devolving upon him in his several capacities, is the least recognition that we can give of his work, and this appreciation is fully and freely extended.

2. That in his several capacities he has labored unceasingly and often at the expense of denying himself social enjoyments and relaxations, and even to the extent of impairing his health, for the advancement of the interests of the Infantry arm of the Service, and, has contributed greatly by his exceptional ability and forcefulness as a manager and editor to the unification and promulgation of the best thought of our arm, until to-day it stands as an exemplification of the most united and consistent force for the national military efficiency of our country.

3. That we wish for him, personally and professionally, a continuation, in full measure, of that success which has marked his work as secretary and treasurer of the United States Infantry Association and as editor-in-chief of the Infantry Journal.

Resolved, That the 19th Infantry Branch of the U.S. Infantry Association pledges its active and loyal support to the general outlines of the plan for the organization of the land forces of the United States recently adopted by the War Department and published to the Army and will oppose any attempt to secure advantages to any branch of the Service through legislation inconsistent therewith.

This branch especially favors:

1. An enlistment for three years with the colors and a subsequent service in reserve.

2. That the Regular Army be placed on a war footing and so maintained at all times.

3. That a tactical organization be provided by law for brigades and divisions.

4. That the present laws regarding the organization of the Volunteer forces be revised.

MILLARD F. WALTZ, Col., 19th Inf., President.

C. W. TILLOTSON, 1st Lieut. and Batln. Adj't., 19th Inf., Regimental Representative.

C. E. Tallman, U.S.N., retired, writes: "You quote the sailor's rhyme—

Old horse, old horse, how came you here!
From Saco Head to Portland Pier
I've carted stone for many a year.
'Til killed by sorrow and sore abuse,
They've salted me down for sailors' use.

"Why didn't you finish it?"

The sailors they do me despise,
They turn me over, and d— a my eyes,
They eat my meat and pick my bones,
And pitch the rest to Davy Jones.

Major Percy M. Ashburn, Med. Corps, U.S.A., has been ordered relieved from duty as a member of the board of medical officers appointed for the purpose of studying tropical diseases as they exist in the Philippine Islands, and from further duty in the Philippine Department, and will proceed on the first available transport to San Francisco, Cal., thence to Ancon, Canal Zone, for the purpose of establishing a board of medical officers for the purpose of studying tropical diseases as they exist in Panama.

ARMY FOREIGN SERVICE LISTS.

The lists which follow, continuing those published June 14, give the amount of foreign service, in years, months and days, up to June, 1913, of all officers of the line not at present on foreign service. We do not include the names of officers now on foreign service, as the lists are intended to show in what order officers are due for foreign service. The list includes the officers stationed in the United States in order in which they will take tours of duty in the Philippines, Hawaii, Alaska and Panama. The term "foreign service" as used in this roster includes all duty with troops beyond the continental limits of the United States. Where officers are noted in the list as having no foreign service to their credit their names appear in order of length of their service in the Army. The only change in the order of the roster in assignment to foreign service will be in cases where officers upon their own application are permitted to take a tour of duty at a foreign station out of their turn. There is not apt to be a very large number of this class, as the War Department is inclined to disapprove of such applications unless there is an excellent reason why an officer should be given a tour of foreign duty before his turn. Part I., Cavalry, was published June 14, page 1268.

IN THREE PARTS—PART II.—FIELD AND COAST ARTILLERY.

ARMY ITEMS.

According to a press despatch from San Francisco fifteen of the twenty shots fired by a mortar battery at San Francisco on the night of the 19th struck a target five and one-half miles out at sea. For night practice this is regarded as an unusual score. The target, it is said, was not visible to the gunners. The range was telephoned to them from stations overlooking the entrance of the harbor.

Lieut. Dwight K. Shurtliff, Ord. Dept. (Cavalry), is now looking over the machine-gun platoons in the Army with a view to experimenting with the modified machine-gun which has been issued to the Army. At present Lieutenant Shurtliff is with the 2d Division at Texas City. It is thought that changes in the extractor of the machine-gun will overcome much of the objection to the gun.

With Major Evans will be Lieutenant Terrill, who will be the only other commissioned officer left during the period of three months which will elapse before the return of the troops. Thirty-six supply wagons accompany the regiment, and the average day's march is expected to be about twenty-three miles. The regiment marched through the city of Burlington en route to North Ferrisburg, the first camp. The regiment arrived at Hubbardton, Vt., June 18, and the next day took up the march to Comstock. June 20 the regiment will camp at Hudson Falls and will reach Saratoga Springs, N.Y., June 21, remaining there until Monday, June 23, when it will proceed to Schenectady. In addition to Capt. Lincoln C. Andrews and Lieut. Albert E. Phillips, Cavalry, U.S.A., the provisional troop of Cavalry of the N.G.N.Y., referred to on pages 1269 and 1285, of our last issue, will have another experienced officer of the Army as an instructor during its tour of duty at Montauk Point, in the person of Capt. David H. Biddle, of the Cavalry arm. Captain Biddle, among other duties, served on the staff of General Miller during his Philippine campaigns, and took part in numerous engagements. He also served as a first lieutenant in the squadron of Philippine Cavalry, an organization which rendered most efficient service during the insurrection. All three instructors have been well chosen, and will have a fine body of troopers in hand. Captain Andrews the senior instructor, has promised the Cavalrymen a suitable shore dinner after camp on Saturday night, June 28.

About forty-odd colleges will be represented at the military camp of instruction to be held at Gettysburg, Pa. The widespread interest in this work is exceeding the anticipations of the War Department. Among the institutions that will send students are the Bingham School, Asheville, N.C.; High School, Washington, D.C.; Georgetown University, Washington, D.C.; George Washington University, Washington, D.C.; Lehigh University, South Bethlehem, Pa.; Ohio Northern University, Ada, Ohio; Kentucky Military Institute, Lyndon, Ky.; University of Arkansas, Fayette, Ark.; Columbia University, New York city; Oberlin College, Oberlin, Ohio; University of South Carolina, Columbia, S.C.; Virginia Military Institute, Lexington, Va.; A. and M. Ensign William D. Billingsley, U.S.N., while flying over Chesapeake Bay, near Annapolis, Md., June 20, was killed by the collapse of the hydro-aeroplane, and Lieut. John H. Towers, U.S.N., who was with him, was seriously hurt. Ensign Billingsley was born in Mississippi April 24, 1887, and was appointed in the Navy July 5, 1905. He attained the rank of ensign June 5, 1911, and was on aviation duty with Lieutenant Towers and a number of other officers. The Navy hydro-aeroplane in company with the flying boat left Annapolis in the early forenoon for a flight to Claiborne, Md., and returned. At a distance not yet ascertained from Annapolis, but apparently between five to seven miles, the hydro-aeroplane at an altitude of about 1,600 feet capsized and began to fall. It appears that when it had fallen about 400 feet Ensign Billingsley fell or was thrown out of it. The 1,200 feet through which he thus fell after being thrown from the machine undoubtedly resulted in his death, though at noon his body had not been recovered. Lieutenant Towers remained in the machine and fell with it into the waters of Chesapeake Bay, where he was rescued and taken to the Naval Academy Hospital, seriously injured, though it is not known at this time how seriously. Boats are out from the Naval Academy searching for Ensign Billingsley's body and for the wreckage of the machine, which latter it is very desirable to recover, in order to find what evidence it may give as to how the accident happened. This is the first accident to Navy aviators resulting in loss of life since the Navy began aviation experiments.

The Navy Department has received from Comdr. Roger Upton, commanding the Power Squadron of the Boston Yacht Club, an interesting account of the development in that club of the organization of power boats into divisions, which are exercised in elementary tactics and signals, similar to those in use in the Navy. From a division of five boats the club has developed a squadron of twenty-four boats, and during the past year this squadron has been maneuvered off the coast, even in storms and bad weather, during which the boats were proved to be seaworthy and their owners fearless and faithful, maneuvering in accordance with signals. It is the wish of the Department to encourage this new departure in yachting, and it is hoped that other yacht clubs will follow the example of the Boston club, the members of which are very enthusiastic in this new line, inasmuch as it affords not only recreation and amusement, but introduces an element of naval discipline and training. The experience in navigation, signals, etc., the keeping of position in squadron, the working together in divisions similar to those of the naval fleet tends to bring the yachtsmen more in touch and sympathy with the Navy. The results already accomplished point to the possibility of using power boat divisions for an inshore patrol and scouting duty in time of war. The suggestion deserves serious consideration, and it is hoped that all yacht clubs will act upon it with a view to the development of a secondary auxiliary to the Navy in defensive warfare.

Representative Barton, of Nebraska, undertook to secure by unanimous consent in the House, June 17, consideration of a resolution requiring the Secretary of the Navy to furnish full information as to the amount paid the steel companies thus far for armor plate, its cost per ton and the cost of manufacturing it and the cost of erecting and equipping a government plant. Similar information concerning powder was asked for, and this question was propounded: "Do steel manufacturing companies having contracts to furnish gun castings for the U.S. Government make contracts with foreign countries, the guns being finished wholly or in part by the United States navy yards? If so, what number of guns have been so finished and for what countries, and what compensation has the United States received?" Mr. Fitzgerald objecting to present consideration, the resolution was referred to the Naval Committee.

Protests against the relief of Major Charles Lynch, Med. Corps, U.S.A., from duty with the Red Cross Society are coming into the White House from every source. Major Lynch during his service with the Red Cross has made such a remarkable record that the friends of this great relief organization fear that no one can take up the work where he left it without injury to the organization. Such protests are an eloquent tribute to the efficiency of an Army officer. Almost invariably where officers of the Army or Navy are detailed on civilian or semi-civilian duty objections are made to their relief. It is a common occurrence for cities to send large delegations to Washington to protest against the change of station of Army engineers. The same is true of instructors with educational institutions and the organized Militia.

Capt. Augustine McIntyre, Field Art., and William S. McNair, 6th Field Art., U.S.A., will be the first officers of an army of another country to witness the target practice of the French artillery. This privilege for some reason or other has never been granted to foreign officers by the French government. The French government has also advised the State Department that an additional officer will be allowed to attend the Saumur Mounted Service School and another officer the School of Intendance. Captains McIntyre and McNair have been ordered to report to the Chief of Staff for instructions and will depart for Europe at an early date. Lieut. Hayden W. Wagner, Cav., U.S.A., will be relieved from the German Cavalry School in August, and will report at Fort Riley, where he will serve as an instructor. No officer will be detailed to the German Cavalry School, but an effort will be made to secure permission for a number of officers to serve with German regiments.

Among the echoes of graduation week at the Military Academy is the following witticism ascribed to a certain officer-professor who lives pretty well toward the end of Officers' Row. He was strolling through Flirtation Walk with a member of the Veterans Association of the 23d Regiment, N.G.N.Y., of Brooklyn, on June 14, the day the veterans visited the Point. Coming around a bend they spied nearby a cadet with his arms around a very pretty girl. "Ah!" said the veteran, "I see the cadets have sweethearts here." "Sweethearts?" replied the officer in a tone of astonishment. "Why, that is his comrade in arms." And away out in the shining river a steamboat whistle sent a shrill note echoing through the hills.

Senator Francis E. Warren, of Wyoming, one of the richest members of the Upper House of Congress, has formally applied for a Civil War veteran's pension of $16 per month. In giving his reasons for asking for the pension, Senator Warren said: "First, the pension will be given to charity. I shall not receive the benefit of a single penny. Second, I have had occasion to hunt for the war records of my Revolutionary ancestors. If they are recorded anywhere I could not find them. So it occurred to me that my Civil War record should be well preserved to my children and I thought it would be accessible to my children and I thought it would be well preserved in the pension record." Senator Warren served in the 49th Massachusetts Volunteers.

A meeting of the board of directors of the Panama Railroad was held in the office of Secretary of War Garrison June 19 to discuss the management and operation of the road across the Isthmus after the canal has been opened. It is regarded as of prime military importance that the railroad be kept up in every way, and it is expected that there will be considerable traffic over the line even after the canal is open. The Government will maintain a coal depot at the entrance of the canal. It will also rent bins to private companies which wish to do a coal business at the canal.

June 15 being the twenty-fifth anniversary of the accession of His Majesty to the throne, the President of the United States sent the following congratulatory message to the German Emperor: "In the sincere hope that a long continuance of Your Majesty's benignant and peaceful reign may bring the great German people increased blessings, I offer to Your Majesty the cordial felicitations of the Government and people of the United States on this twenty-fifth anniversary of Your Majesty's accession and my personal good wishes for Your Majesty's welfare. Woodrow Wilson."

A petition to the President of the United States signed by 60,000 school children of the state of Oregon, expressing the desire that the battleship Oregon be detailed to lead the parade through the Panama Canal when formally opened, has reached the Navy Department. These petitions were forwarded in a bulky package, and form one of the most unique characters of correspondence that has been received for some time. The Navy Department has not yet given any consideration to the form of naval representation in the ceremonies that may mark the formal opening of the canal.

"I have taken continuously the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL since I entered the Regular Army in 1880," says Major J. H. Macomber, chaplain, U.S.A., retired, "and permit me to say," he adds, "I have ever been pleased with the spirit of fairness as well as deep interest manifested by the JOURNAL in all branches and departments of the Service, and I want further to say that I think the JOURNAL grows better each year, and I feel a pride in recognizing it as our Army organ."

The Mountain Artillery Manual has received a service test in the 2d Division by the 4th Field Artillery and has been forwarded to the War Department for its final review. Because of the confusion which has existed in the Mountain Artillery on account of the lack of the necessary regulations contained in the Manual an effort will be made to complete the new Manual at as early a date as possible. It is based on the Infantry Manual and is rapidly being put into form for publication.

The bronze plate placed on the main mast of the battleship Maine by the Daughters of the American Revolution, of Havana, Cuba, and subsequently removed to the Department archives, is to be restored to the historic old spar when it is erected in Arlington National Cemetery to mark the graves of the unknown dead of the ill-fated battleship.

Charges that some American soldiers on the Mexican border are as much outlaws as the roving bands across the line were laid before Secretary Garrison, of the War Department, June 20, by J. J. Kilpatrick, a merchant of Candelaria, Texas. Mr. Kilpatrick's son is postmaster at that place, and the post-office is situated in the elder Kilpatrick's store.

PROMOTIONS AND RETIREMENTS.

Capt. Theophilus B. Steele, Coast Art., who was retired from active service June 14, 1913, for disability, was born in Kentucky April 19, 1863. He served as first sergeant of Co. E, 202d New York Volunteer Infantry, from July to October, 1898, and then as second lieutenant to April, 1899. He was appointed first lieutenant in the 35th U.S. Volunteer Infantry, July 5, 1899, serving with that command in the Philippines. He was appointed a first lieutenant in the Artillery Corps of the Regular Army Aug. 22, 1901. He was promoted to captain in 1907. A son, Theophilus Steele, is a second lieutenant in the 14th U.S. Infantry. Captain Steele is a graduate of the Coast Artillery School, class of 1905.

The Secretary of the Navy addressed a letter to Rear Admiral Hugo Osterhaus, U.S.N., on the eve of Admiral Osterhaus's retirement, June 15, 1913, by operation of the statute which requires Navy officers to be retired at the age of sixty-two years, expressing the Department's appreciation of his naval career of nearly forty-eight years' honorable service. The letter states that Admiral Osterhaus's performance of duty, always zealous and painstaking, won for him the most important and responsible position that it lies within the province of the Navy Department to give—that of Commander-in-Chief of the Atlantic Fleet—and his command of that great fleet was characterized by the same zealous and efficient performance of duty that has been a noticeable feature of his duty in every grade. The congratulations of the Department were extended to Admiral Osterhaus upon the completion of a career of such usefulness, reflecting distinction upon himself, upon the Navy and upon the country which he so long and faithfully served.

Tests are being made of the new 3-inch mountain Howitzer carriages at the Sandy Hook Proving Grounds under the direction of the Ordnance Board and Major William S. McNair, 6th Field Art. These new carriages, which are carried on five pack mules with the gun, are a revelation in the rapidity with which they can be set up ready for firing. Even in the experimental stage they can be unpacked and mounted ready for firing in less than a minute. Quite a number of new features are introduced in the construction of the carriages which are proving great time and labor savers in the handling of guns. After the conclusion of this test the board and Major William J. Snow will test the new 3.8 and 4.7 field Howitzers. A successful test has been made of the 6-inch disappearing guns which are to be placed in the Panama fortifications. Both the carriages and the gun, according to incomplete and unofficial reports, have proven to be more effective than any gun of this size that has been tried out at Sandy Hook.

PROSPECTS OF ARMY LEGISLATION.

When the House Committee on Military Affairs considers the question of the reorganization of the Army a definite program will be supported by the Army and the War Department. To lay a secure foundation for the reorganization the legalization of divisions and brigades will be urged. The belief is held that it is as important to have permanently and legally organized brigades and divisions as it is companies and regiments. Every other first class Power and some of the smaller countries have such permanent organizations. It is generally recognized as the first step in the preparation for war. Whatever Army we have, it is admitted it should be organized to take the field almost instantly upon the declaration of war. The mobilization of the 2d Division, now on the Texas border, is a striking illustration of the importance of a tactical organization.

A change in the term of enlistment will be urged by the Secretary of War and officers generally. As most of the members of the Military Committee are ready to acknowledge that the present term of enlistment is not a success, it is practically assured that it will be changed, although it would be difficult to predict at this time just what the change will be. The Secretary will strongly urge a shorter term of enlistment and the creation of reserves. An effort will be made to secure at least a small pay for reservists. It is estimated that an expenditure of a million dollars upon the reserves under proper regulations would practically double the military strength of the country.

Legislation on the question of promotion will also be urged. It is generally conceded that promotion in the Army would be on a more equitable basis if it were made without regard to arms of the Service. Several plans have been discussed for this, and it is thought that one will be agreed to which will go a long way toward relieving the friction between the various arms of the Service. The present system of promotion, it is urged, is one of the greatest obstacles in the way of perfecting a tactical Army.

The War Department is very much encouraged by the friendly attitude of Chairman Hay and the members of the new Committee on Military Affairs toward new legislation for increasing the efficiency of the Army. It is not expected that any legislation will be reported to the House at this session, but it is thought that much progress will be made for the perfecting of the bill which will be reported at the beginning of the regular session. One of the greatest difficulties encountered in securing new military legislation is that in a regular session the committees take up the appropriation bills and dispose of them before considering new bills. Complications often develop which delay the passage of the appropriation bills and prevent the consideration of new legislation in time to enact it into law before Congress adjourns. Frequently if an important bill is passed by the House it reaches the Senate so late that one or two Senators who happen to be opposed to it hold it up until adjournment. Even when passed in the last days of the session it is necessary for the advocates of a measure to accept amendments which greatly reduce the value of a new law. Consideration of the reorganization legislation by the Military Committee at the special session will prevent such complications. By the time Congress adjourns it is hoped that the bill will be ready to be reported at the opening of next session, and it is possible that it may be passed even before the Appropriation bill is taken up by the House. The carrying out of such a program will practically assure the passage of some very important Army legislation at the next session.

In the Infantry Journal Major Carl Reichmann, Gen. Staff, who is one of the most thoughtful students of military problems we have in the Army, speaks of the reserve system provided by Congress as marking "a radical departure from our traditional policy and one of the most important pieces of organic legislation passed since 1792." By a similar radical departure from traditional methods the British army has built up a reserve amounting to 140,000 men on Oct. 1, 1911. The change in England was bitterly opposed, notably by that "old fossil" the Duke of Cambridge, who denounced it not only as "mad folly," but as "a crime against the state."

We may look for similar opposition in this country to Army reform, but, as Major Reichmann says, "As the Franco-Prussian war opened the eyes of Great Britain, so we might learn something from the recent Balkan war. Bulgaria, which is a country with a population (4,329,108) but one-half that of our single state of New York, and less than that of Pennsylvania, Ohio or Illinois, was able to provide an army of 350,000 effectives. This was done by keeping seventeen per cent. of the field forces under arms in time of peace and incorporating annually eight per cent. With a similar system we could have always ready a force sufficient to ensure perpetual peace.

Major Reichmann gives a table showing that with a proper reserve system we could have had available for transfer to the reserve in the four years from 1907 to 1910, inclusive, 101,819 men, an average of 25,455 yearly. "We need," he says, "standard troop units in peace and war, up to include the division. Presidential proclamations and Congressional legislation should call for a certain number of units instead of so many men, and should contain provisions for keeping up the strength of these units. When a company decides to enter the manufacturing field it calculates what its output should be to yield the desired profit and determines the number of standard machines that will have to be installed; the necessary crews are then hired by managers and foremen. The Government should proceed on similar lines."

The tactical organization for brigades and divisions now rests upon general orders from the War Department. It should be established by law, and not left subject to changes of opinion at headquarters. As to the necessity of revising the law regulating volunteer forces there can be no question.

We publish with pleasure the resolutions of the 19th Infantry, appearing in another column, which recognize the services of Capt. George H. Shelton, U.S.A., as secretary and treasurer of the U.S. Infantry Association and as editor-in-chief of the Infantry Journal. Under the able administration of Major Evan M. Johnson, Jr., who has succeeded Captain Shelton, the Infantry Association will continue its efforts to unite the Army in support of some practical measures of legislation on its behalf. What is proposed is indicated by the resolutions of the 19th Infantry referred to. These favor an enlistment of three years, with subsequent duty in the reserve; the maintenance of the Regular Army always on a war footing; provision by law for a tactical organization for brigades and divisions and the revision of the law regulating volunteer forces. We shall be glad to see the Army united in support of such measures in conformity with the spirit of the Infantry resolutions rebuking "any attempt to secure advantage to any branch of the Service through legislation inconsistent with the purposes in view." What is proposed accords with the plans of the General Staff, and whatever is done by the Infantry Association or any other representative body of the Army will of necessity be done in accordance with the plans of the War Department and subject to its approval.

Not all of the changes that have been recently made in the Army are meeting with general approval. Some of the most strenuous objectors to the system of transferring officers from one organization to another are the older and most competent non-commissioned officers. One of the most efficient and well known sergeants major in the Army said recently, in discussing new conditions in the Army: "I am very much afraid that the present system of snatching officers out of one regiment to another is going to prove a death blow to regimental esprit. To me it is quite noticeable that the old enthusiasm in our regiment is lacking. This is too bad. My experience teaches me that there is nothing which will take an organization so far into a hot place as esprit—your own old officers whom you know and who know you and the pride in the organization to which you belong is the life of an army. This has been so in the past, and in spite of all other theories I believe it is going to prove right as long as men are led by men. The frantic scramble after efficiency seems to be overlooking the human nature factor in the rank and file. Is this policy sound? Where is it going to end? There are very few left now of the officers who helped to put this regiment in the way of becoming the 'crack' of the Army when it was organized, and it is a safe bet that in a few more years what they did will be entirely lost sight of by the newcomers. I hope someone will get up at the head of things who will see that no amount of individual excellence can hope to accomplish what good team work will do. It seems that someone, anyone in fact, who has ever played football, polo, baseball or any other game requiring collective effort, should realize this; for, after all, what is war but a game in which the most perfect team work wins? I have thought a lot about this lately, and have been wondering if there is anyone else who thinks as I do about it, or whether I am just behind the times?"

Major General Wood had an opportunity to call public attention to the military needs of the country in an address at the graduation exercises of the Carnegie Institute of Technology at Pittsburgh, Pa., June 17. Undeterred by the sinister suggestion in the name of the institution before which he appeared, General Wood urged the importance of military preparation, saying that for our purpose 100,000 trained troops would be sufficient, but in addition these active troops should have the backing of 600,000 reserves trained and instructed in the art of war and kept in a state of preparedness for war whenever called to the colors. For this number of troops, which we should need to call for immediately in case of war, we would require between 16,000 and 17,000 officers, yet we have but 4,000 officers who are fitted to command. General Wood advised that all young men graduating from colleges and universities be offered commissions of second and first lieutenants in the Army, and be allowed to serve for one year, after that to be placed on a reserve list, and that every young man graduating from a school or college subject himself to a year's military training and discipline.

In the files of the State Department is a protest by Japan against the acquisition of Hawaii by the United States. It was made at the time the legislation was pending and has never been withdrawn. Japan did not protest against the acquisition of the Philippines by this country, but she did not want Hawaii to become United States territory. This significant fact is what causes alarm among people who are aware of the unpreparedness of this country for war. They know that the mobile Army is not properly organized for an emergency such as might happen in case Japan should declare war on account of the recent troubles in California. Army and Navy men, it is well understood, have been warned not to discuss war possibilities with Japan. Officers whose duty it is to look after plans to meet possible emergencies have been told to desist in order that there shall be no cause for irritation pending the negotiations between this country and Japan. And yet these officers, and other military experts, have figured out carefully the possibilities, and their opinion is that in case of war with Japan that country could occupy the Philippines, Hawaii, Alaska and the Canal Zone, parts of Washington and Oregon, and perhaps portions of California. In such an event they are speculating on how long the other great powers of the world would permit a war to continue which would prove an injury to business and commerce. More than that it is not so long ago that a treaty with Russia was abrogated and the canal treaty with Great Britain broken or greatly strained. Other nations feel that they have been affronted and they might feel inclined to tell the United States to come to a settlement with Japan; that is, if Japan should secure the advantages which are predicted as possible. "I am not an alarmist," remarked Hon. Julius Kahn, the ranking minority member on the House Military Committee, "but as a resident of California I know something about the situation, and I know also the disadvantage we labor under in not having a mobile Army where officers and men have been trained in tactical units as well as a reserve which could fill the ranks in a sudden emergency. Let the man who thinks this is simply a 'scare' read the history of the past fifteen years. From time to time Russia would take some action and Japan would protest. Then would follow a period of negotiations extending for months and years. Then some other act of Russia would cause another protest by Japan and further negotiations. And so it went along year after year. Japan was preparing all the time. And finally when fully prepared she struck with such suddenness and ferocity that a powerful nation like Russia was defeated on sea and land and compelled to conclude a peace most humiliating. It is not because I want war that I want an Army properly organized, trained and drilled, with a reserve which will meet emergencies. It is because I want to avoid war. With such an Army as a country situated like the United States should have there would not be much possibility of war, and there would be far less 'war scares' to alarm our people."

Chairman Padgett, of the House Committee on Naval Affairs, has decided to take up the Navy personnel question without waiting for recommendations from the Navy Department or the submission of a bill by the Secretary. He has accordingly asked the Secretary to order a number of officers before the committee at a hearing which will be conducted at a date yet to be selected. It is planned to hold this hearing before the special session adjourns, so as to formulate legislation to be reported at the beginning of next session. In selecting this list to appear before the committee the chairman has been careful to secure representatives of the line, staff and every interest in the Navy, as well as in the Marine Corps. In the opinion of the chairman it will be possible to get a fuller and freer expression of the sentiment of the Navy through hearings without any formal recommendation from the Navy Department before the committee, as officers will be able to express their ideas upon the subject without fear of antagonizing the Navy Department. The Secretary of the Navy realizes that there is a need of some personnel legislation, but has not given the subject sufficient study to make up his mind as to what should be its character. He will form his judgment largely from a consideration of the facts developed by the committee, so that the hearings will not only instruct the committee, but will enlighten the Secretary on the personnel question.

The fact that the nominations of Col. John P. Wisser and Col. Thomas F. Davis, U.S.A., to be brigadier generals, have not been confirmed is not taken to indicate that any effort will be made to hold them up in the Senate. The delay is occasioned by the failure to obtain a quorum of the sub-committee of the Senate Committee on Military Affairs at its regular meetings. The consideration of the tariff bill and currency legislation is now absorbing the attention of the Senate. While the currency bill is not formally before the Senate the Democratic Senators are busy holding currency conferences and outlining a plan for the consideration of the bill when it is sent to the Senate. The Republican Senators are marking time at present. A great many of them are taking advantage of the lull in the proceedings of the Senate to go home to attend to their private business. It is thought that after the Fourth of July when the Senate gets down to regular business the nominations will be reported and promptly confirmed.

Steps are being taken to concentrate the 2d U.S. Field Artillery (mountain) in the Philippines and the 1st Field Artillery (light) in Hawaii. The 2d Field Artillery, which is to be permanently stationed in the Philippines, will be in command of Col. Eli D. Hoyle, who has been ordered to report at San Francisco on July 5. In accordance with this plan, which was adopted by the War Department over a year ago, headquarters and Batteries D, E and F of the 2d Field Artillery will be transferred from Vancouver Barracks to relieve Batteries A, B and C of the 1st Field Artillery in the Philippines. On being relieved the batteries of the 1st Field Artillery now in the Philippines will join the rest of the regiment in Hawaii. Incidentally, the 3d Division will be left without any field artillery. This condition shows the great shortage of field artillery in the Army, as no division needs field artillery more than the one which is stationed on the Pacific coast. Batteries D, E and F, comprising the 2d Battalion of the 2d U.S. Field Artillery now at Vancouver Barracks, Washington, will sail from San Francisco July 5, 1913, for Manila, P.I., for station.

"We hear much of peace to-day," said Senator Elihu Root in a speech at a dinner of the New York Chamber of Commerce, "but let me tell you the peace of the world is maintained by the great governments of the world. It is not the governments, but the peoples, from whom the danger of war comes to-day, and will always come so long as they fail to exercise proper self-restraint and the courtesy that the peace of the world demands. We in America must learn that we cannot continue a policy of peace with insult. We must learn civility. We must learn that when an American sovereign speaks of the affairs of a foreign nation he must observe those rules of courtesy by which alone the peace of the world can be maintained."

There is an unconfirmed statement that the Secretary of the Navy has under consideration a proposition to place the navy yards in charge of civilian superintendents, on the theory that a great saving might be made by introducing business methods under the direction of civilians into the navy yards. It is not understood that the Secretary has made up his mind on the subject, but that he is simply considering a recommendation of this character. He is also looking into a number of the features of the Newberry plan, with a view to determining its merits as compared with the Meyer organization which he inherited from his predecessor.

The order of the Secretary of the Navy holding up the promotion of Capt. Templin M. Potts and Comdr. Philip Andrews until they comply with the new sea-service requirements for promotion will not in any way interfere with the promotions as a result of the retirement of Rear Admiral Hugo Osterhaus. Capt. Clifford J. Boush will be promoted rear admiral, and Comdr. George F. Cooper captain, as a result of the retirement of Rear Admiral Osterhaus. Vacancies will be maintained for Captain Potts and Commander Andrews until they complete their tour of sea duty as required by the Secretary. The officers will not lose any rank as the result of the new policy of the Department.

Senator Jones and Representative Humphrey are urging the Navy Department to purchase the Keyport site for a Pacific torpedo station, Congress having appropriated $140,000 to purchase such a site without designating the property to be acquired. If it is found upon examination that this appropriation is available until expended Secretary Daniels, while in the State of Washington, will visit the Keyport site and determine whether the price of $118,000 fixed by condemnation is reasonable or not. If the Comptroller holds that the appropriation lapses July 1, unless expended, the Department probably will take over the site at the figure fixed by condemnation.

Mr. Garrison, Secretary of War, has directed Colonel Goethals, U.S.A., chairman of the Panama Canal Commission, to make a special report giving his views concerning the proper method of operating the canal and methods of governing the Zone after the waterway is completed. Colonel Goethals also will give his views concerning the merging of the construction force into an operating and maintenance force and of the future of the Panama Railroad.

It has been suggested that technical sea service in the Navy is not necessarily a qualification for promotion superior to that of shore duty. Duty on the Mayflower and the Dolphin is, for instance, a pleasant vacation as compared with work on a desk in the War Department. The same might be said of duty on a ship that is undergoing extensive repairs in navy yards or is tied up at the dock for an extended period for some other reason.

The Columbia (S.C.) State is greatly troubled because, as it says, "it seems impossible for The Commoner and the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL to pull in harness on a peace plan." Why not? The Commoner's bowels yearn after peace and the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL is engaged in showing it how peace can be secured.

THE SIXTY-THIRD CONGRESS.
FIRST (EXTRA) SESSION.

The Sundry Civil bill is now in the hands of the President, the Senate having receded from its vote against the House provision to reduce the number on the boards for control of the Homes for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers to five. The clauses exempting labor unions and farmers' organizations from prosecution as trusts remain in the bill in the same form as when these clauses led President Taft to veto the measure in the last Congress.

Among deficiency items of appropriation which the Secretary of the Treasury asks Congress to appropriate are the following: $1,000,000 to repay the Mississippi River flood relief expenses of the War and Navy Departments; $250,000 to begin the Arlington National Cemetery memorial amphitheater; $8,000 for the Atlantic iceberg patrol, and $1,000,000 for replacing stores destroyed in the Benicia Arsenal, Cal.

BILLS BEFORE CONGRESS.

S.J. Res. 43, Mr. Fall.—Whereas the provisions of the joint resolution of March 14, 1912, authorizing the President to prohibit the exportation of arms and munitions of war under certain circumstances, and the proclamation of the President of the United States, issued March 14, 1912, under authority of said resolution, have been and are now being so construed by the authorities charged with enforcement of same as to prohibit the exportation of arms and munitions of war to one or more of the contending factions in the Republic of Mexico and to authorize and permit such exportation of arms and munitions to one or more of such contending factions; and

Whereas, there has been for more than two years last past continuous strife and armed conflict between various contending factions within the Republic of Mexico and the different states thereof; and

Whereas, the enforcement of such law and the proclamation putting same in effect has, as is shown by the evidence taken by the Senate committee under S. Res. 335, 62d Congress, second session, caused attacks upon American citizens residing or temporarily being in Mexico, the destruction of the property of such American citizens, the holding of such citizens for ransom, and has resulted in engendering between such and other American citizens and the great mass of Mexicans feelings of antagonism and distrust, and is destroying the traditional friendship between the people of the two countries; and

Whereas, it is the desire of the Government of the United States to remain entirely neutral and to take no part, directly or indirectly, in the internal affairs of the Republic of Mexico, and to restore and maintain the friendship and good feeling heretofore existing between the citizens of the two countries: Therefore Resolved, etc., That the joint resolution of March 14, 1912, amending the joint resolution of April 22, 1898, authorizing the President to prohibit the exportation of arms and materials of war, and so forth, be, and the same is hereby, repealed.

S. 2542, Mr. Brandegee.—To place the names of Elverton E. Fuller and Frank H. Adams on the lineal list of Infantry officers next after that of J. De Camp Hall, 4th Inf., to date from Jan. 6, 1900.

S. 2543, Mr. Townsend.—To place Michael James McCormick upon the active list of the Navy.

S. 2551, Mr. Nelson.—That the claims of officers of the U.S. Army, or of persons who may have served as such, and of the heirs at law or legal representatives of such as are deceased, for arrears of longevity pay, are hereby referred to the U.S. Court of Claims, and jurisdiction is hereby conferred upon said court to render judgment in all such claims, without regard to the lapse of time for the amount, if any, found due; and in the adjustment of such claims credit shall be allowed for the full time of service as cadets in the Military Academy at West Point and as officers or enlisted men in the Army or Navy of the United States, Regular or Volunteer, or both: Provided, That nothing contained in the Urgent Deficiency Act, approved Dec. 22, 1911, shall apply to claims that may be filed under the provisions of this Act.

S. 2553, Mr. Thornton.—That hereafter the increased pay authorized by law for each rating of the Navy during the second and subsequent periods of service of enlisted men who are citizens of the United States shall be paid to such enlisted men as are otherwise entitled thereto, irrespective of the citizenship of such enlisted men: Provided, That any and all enlisted men who have, subsequent to March 27, 1906, been carried on the records of the Navy Department as citizens of the United States shall be entitled to any increased pay to which they would have been entitled if citizens of the United States: And provided further, That where any enlisted men of the Navy have received such increased pay and have subsequently been checked on account of their inability to prove that they were citizens of the United States during the time they were in receipt of such increased pay, the proper accounting officers of the Treasury are hereby authorized and directed to reopen the accounts of such enlisted men and to credit them respectively with the amounts so checked against them.

S. 2555, Mr. Gallinger.—That no flag other than the national flag of the United States, or a state flag, or the flag of a friendly foreign nation, or of the dependencies of such nation, shall be carried in parade within the District of Columbia.

H. Res. 176, Mr. Barton.—Resolved, That the Secretary of the Navy be, and is hereby, instructed to send to the House of Representatives at the earliest date possible the following information:

First. What has been the total expenditure of the U.S. Government for armor plate for all purposes since its introduction and use in the construction of war vessels?

Second. What portion of this amount has been paid to the Carnegie Steel Company, the Bethlehem Steel Company, and the Midvale Steel Company, and to other steel companies, if any?

Third. What is the cost per ton to the Government for armor plate purchased? What is the cost of manufacturing armor plate per ton?

Fourth. Do steel-manufacturing companies having contracts to furnish gun castings for the U.S. Government make contracts with foreign countries, the guns being finished wholly or in part by the U.S. navy yards? If so, what number of guns have been so finished and for what countries, and what compensation has the United States received?

Fifth. What would be the cost of erecting and equipping a Government plant for the manufacture of armor plate?

Sixth. A large portion of the expense of making guns being already provided for by the Government in its own plant, what would be the additional expense of enlarging the plant so that the guns could be made entirely by the Government?

Seventh. What is the cost per ton of powder now manufactured by Government plants? What is the cost per ton of powder purchased for the use of the Government? What would be the expense of enlarging the Government plant or erecting additional plants to the end that the United States manufacture all its powder, instead of only a portion, as at the present time?

H.R. 6153, Mr. Byrns, of Tennessee.—Authorizing the Secretary of War to acquire the hill in or near the city of Nashville, Tenn., comprising about fifty-four acres, which was the site of Fort Negley, one of the salient points of the Federal line in the Battle of Nashville, and to restore and reconstruct said fort and fortifications and make of said land a national park, and making appropriation therefor $500,000.

H.R. 6191, Mr. Smith, of Maryland.—To appoint Wilbur

F. Cogswell an assistant engineer in the Navy and place him on the retired list.

THE BATTLE WITH THE MOROS.

The official report of the fighting against the Moros at Mount Bagsak, Island of Jolo, which was requested by the War Department, was sent by Brig. Gen. John J. Pershing, commanding the District of Mindanao, on June 15. It shows that the first battle, to which we referred in our last issue, was not the end of the conflict and that fighting was going on at the time of the dispatching of the report. General Pershing dwells upon the practice of the Moros, when they fear trouble with the United States troops, of taking their women and children with them in the hope that the American soldiers will not attack the non-combatants. It will be recalled that in the first Bud Dajo battle of 1906, some of the native women who were in the camp had been killed. They had, however, taken active part in the fighting and not being distinguishable in the hurly-burly of battle from the men, suffered like the male warriors. There was much criticism of the troops by a certain tender-hearted class of Americans who either knew nothing of the actual facts of the battle or purposely ignored them. Denunciatory letters appeared in the newspapers and speeches were made condemning our soldiers "for making war on women." Through the efforts of those American "patriots," who have been laboring hand in hand with a disgruntled faction in the Philippines to discredit our nation in the Orient, some of the Moros may have learned of this attack upon our soldiers at home and have presumed upon that information to impose upon the good nature of General Pershing, who has patiently labored to bring about the complete disarmament of the natives without bloodshed. It was plain to him that disarmament would not amount to anything if any part of the population were permitted to retain their weapons, and that to be effective the disarmament must be made to include everyone. The following is the text of General Pershing's report and of later official despatches:

Cablegram received at the War Department June 17, 1913, 5:13 a.m., from Manila:

The Adjutant General, Washington.

The following from John J. Pershing (Brig. Gen.), June 15, received here June 16:

"Reference War Department telegram, outlaw Moros of ward under Amil have long given trouble on Island of Jolo, committing all sorts of crimes, then retiring to stronghold on Mount Bagsak. Every effort made during last year to disarm these Moros and avoid fighting, but without success. Every movement of troops has caused practically whole Moros population of ward, including women and children, numbering thousands, to stampede to Mount Bagsak, well knowing that we would hesitate to attack women and children and feel secure in their stronghold. They have not kept their promises and recently they have flatly declined to surrender individual criminals or arms. In view of this situation, I decided to settle the question once for all, and secretly moved last Wednesday morning against Bagsak and surprised law so completely that they had no time to assemble their families. Our troops have encountered desperate resistance and strongly fortified mountain positions have been difficult to take. Have occupied entire rim of crater exception one cotta where fighting is now in progress. Moros' losses unknown as yet, though probably heavy. Our losses already reported. This will probably end outlawry in Jolo for some time."

The following from John J. Pershing (Brig. Gen.), June 15, received here June 16:

"Remaining cotta on Bagsak captured this day 5:15 after hard fighting from seven in morning. George C. Charlton (Capt., Phil. Scouts), with 51st and 52d Companies, Phil. Scouts, made attack supported by Thomas F. Van Natta, Jr. (1st Lieut., 8th Cav.), mountain guns and 24th and 31st Companies, Phil. Scouts. Cottas taken after hand-to-hand fighting, well conducted by officers. Our losses 6 killed and 7 wounded enlisted men 51st and 52d Companies, Phil. Scouts. Moros' losses unknown. Probably have most troops return to Jolo to-morrow by marching."

WRIGHT, in absence of the department commander.

Extract from cablegram received at the War Department June 16, 1913, 6:43 a.m., from Manila:

The following from John J. Pershing (Brig. Gen.), June 14, received here June 15:

"Following occurred since my last report: Friday at noon Patrick Moylan (Capt., Phil. Scouts), with 31st and 14th Companies, Phil. Scouts, took Mount Bunga after hand-to-hand fight. One scout 31st Company killed. Mountainside very precipitous. Gun carried up by hand arriving to-day now pounding last cotta on rim of crater."

WRIGHT, in absence of the department commander.

June 12: Taylor A. Nichols (Capt., Phil. Scouts), one Philippine Scout.

June 13: One Philippine Scout.

June 15: One Philippine Scout.

All gunshot wound, except the one on June 13, killed with barong.

ARMY AVIATION NOTES.

At San Diego, Cal., during the first week in June there were thirty-two flights made by the two student officers, Lieutenants Taliaferro and Carberry. The total time in the air for these flights was two hours and thirty-five minutes. These officers are making rapid progress, and will undoubtedly qualify for their F.A.I. licenses in a very short time.

At Texas City, Texas, during the week ending June 7 all the officers present made a number of flights. Lieutenant Milling headed the list with a total of ten flights and a total time in the air of one hour and thirty-five minutes. He gave instruction to Lieutenants Dodd, Kelly and Call. Lieutenant Ellington made eight flights, with a total time of two hours and thirty-five minutes. Lieutenant Kirtland gave instruction to Lieutenants Love, Dodd and Morrow, making a total of six flights. Captain Hennessy, who has recently learned the Wright control, had a total of five flights for one hour and thirteen minutes. Lieutenant Call made the longest flight of the week, remaining in the air for one hour and thirteen minutes.

The detachment started for San Diego on June 14, where a large school is to be established. This school will be for the instruction of officers just detailed on aviation duty. After learning to fly and receiving their military aviator's license they report to the aviation centers. Lieutenants Graham, Kirtland and Call have been left with three aeroplanes for duty with the division at Texas City.

In the Philippine Islands Army aviation has made progress, which is also noted on page 1298. During the period from March 24 to April 30, 1913, the training machine was in the air for a total time of twenty-three hours.

Lieutenant Lahm, who was instructor, spent eleven hours and seventeen minutes in the air with Lieutenants Chapman, Dargue and Rich as pupils. All of these officers took their first flight alone on April 14, 1913. Between that date and April 30 they spent the following time in the air:

Lieutenant Chapman, 41 min.; Lieutenant Dargue, 5 hr. 59 min.; Lieutenant Rich, 4 hr. 30 min. These officers flew every day during the time specified above except Sundays.

LESSONS OF THE BALKAN CONFLICT.

Speaking recently in Paris on the lessons of the Balkan war General Maitrot, the well known publicist, expressed the opinion that the Bulgarians owed their crushing successes to four things, viz.: (1) ability in concealing their movements and intentions; (2) determined offensive, "foudroyante et irresistible"; (3) superiority of their methods and matériel, and (4) all round inferiority of the Turkish army as a result of the disastrous influence of politics. The value of secrecy in war was illustrated by references to the 1870 campaign. But for the indiscretion of Paris journals, which revealed to the Germans the march of MacMahon on Montmedy (to the rescue of Bazaine besieged in Metz) and caused von Moltke to modify his plans just in time to intercept the French army, France would very probably have been spared the disaster of Sedan, 17,000 French casualties, 110,000 prisoners, and its consequences. Hence the good sense of the Bulgarians in dispensing with the "services" of journalists and correspondents, and in exercising a merciless censure on all telegrams and letters. By this means they were enabled to completely surprise their opponents and smash the Ottoman army, which was caught in all the confusion of a badly managed mobilization.

The Bulgarian offensive was so vigorously led that they only required twenty-seven days to advance 250 kilometers into the enemy's land, defeating on the way all troops that opposed them. Seldon has the maxim, "Frappez fort et frappez vite!" been applied with so much force and success; which is a reminder to the French that they are exposed to the very danger that overtook the Turks, since the Germans, who have some 100,000 men permanently massed in Lorraine and ever ready to take the field, have made no secret, notably General von Bernhardi, of their intentions to attack France without warning, so as to achieve decisive results before either the French reserves or the Russian army are in a position to intervene. The massing of Gallic troops in adequate numbers close to the frontier so as to prevent the Germans scoring initial successes, of so tremendous importance in warfare, is recommended by General Maitrot as the remedy best adapted to the requirements of the actual situation, and he announced that the question was foremost in the preoccupations of the Paris War Office.

The lecturer noted with legitimate pride the excellent use the allies made of French war methods and matériel, though he judiciously remarked: "C'est l'ouvrier qui fait l'outil." The Creusot 75 mil. gun of the Bulgarians he considered superior to the field gun of the French army, because lighter and more handy. But in his opinion the perfect, ideal field ordnance was the new cannon of Colonel Depoit, which combines power, handiness and facilities for vertical firing against airships. And yet, he added, all the competence of Bulgarian officers and military virtues of the rank and file would have proved insufficient, even with the help of superior matériel, to secure prompt and decisive victory had the Turkish army been the same in organization and spirit as that which fought so heroically at Plevna. Fortunately for the allies, "la politique" had effectively destroyed the old warlike qualities of Ottoman troops. Turkish chiefs in command owed their posts not to their merit, but merely to the influence of politics and free-masonry, and old type officers, who were brave and good men, knowing how to win the confidence and affection of the soldiers, had been dismissed and replaced by unworthy "officiers-politiciens" who affected in service the haughtiness and harshness of manners peculiar to German officers, and were disliked and despised by their men. Here the eminent lecturer drew a parallel between the plight of the Ottoman army and the actual condition of affairs in France, where the army has suffered considerably through the immixion of politics in military matters. In France many officers occupying situations of high responsibility have notoriously been appointed through political influences and "piston," and are considered by their peers as professionally inefficient. Moreover, a relatively great number of able and respected officers, but of too independent and noble a character to court the favor of the political "cliques," have been compelled to resign and leave active service. This is notably the case of the lecturer, General Maitrot, who is a remarkably youthful and active gentleman, and but for our "Young Turks" would have continued worthily serving his country as chief of the most important corps of the French army, with 64,000 men, at Chalons.

A further mistake of the Turks was to trust too much to reservists. These veterans (référés), badly commanded and without cohesion, gave the signal of the rout in every encounter, thus showing that "a man with a gun" does not make a true soldier without adequate training.

THE PANAMA CANAL.

Ex-Secretary Stimson, in an article on "The Defense of the Panama Canal" in the July Scribner, answers the argument that the fleet should be the sole protection of the Panama Canal by saying: "This would be the most expensive possible method of protecting the canal. It would be using material costing nearly two hundred millions of dollars to do work which could be better done by other means at about ten per cent. of that cost; for the total expense of defending the canal by fortifications and land defense, according to present estimates, is less than twenty millions."

"What the engineers of the U.S. Government are constructing at Panama," Joseph Bucklin Bishop, secretary of the Canal Commission, tells us in the same magazine, "is not a canal through the Isthmus, but a bridge of water across and above it. The so-called canal is a huge water-bridge, the first in the world's history. It is about thirty-four miles in length, eighty-seven feet high, with a channel of water through its center varying in depth from forty-five to eighty-seven feet and in width at the bottom from 300 to 1,000 feet. The bridge is divided into two sections, Gatun Lake and Culebra Cut, the latter being an arm of the former. Access to the bridge by vessels will be by means of water elevators, six in duplicate at either end, each 1,000 feet long, 110 feet wide, and with a combined lift of eighty-seven feet."

Emory R. Johnson, the government expert on the question of tolls and traffic, in the July Scribner says: "It is possible that the chief accomplishment of the Panama Canal may be one of which the people of the United States will scarcely be aware. The main obstacle to the successful development of our Federal Government has been sectional strife. * * * The Panama Canal, by increasing the economic interdependence of the East and the West, and of the West and the South, will promote the political unity as well as the economic solidarity of the country."

PROTECTING OUR ATHLETES.

Lieut. Comdr. Harris Laning, U.S.N., recently in charge of athletics and physical training at the Naval Academy, under the title of "The Necessity of Protecting Our Athletes," has a paper in the June Proceedings of the U.S. Naval Institute, explaining the reason why the Academy recently decided that midshipmen would not be permitted to take part in rowing races of a greater distance than one mile and five-sixteenths, or in individual running races of greater distances than one-fourth of a mile. This decision of the Academy authorities has called forth some criticism in the daily press, and the purpose of Commander Laning's essay is to point out why a lessening of competitive effort among Academy athletes has been deemed beneficial. This reduction in the distance of rowing and running races is but the inevitable result of the views of Surgeon General Stokes, of the Navy, for in his first annual report he took strong ground against the overdoing of athletics and recommended less strenuous. He has since abated none of his original opposition to excessive athletic strains, and his influence and theories and the results of his observations must have had a controlling effect upon those in authority at the Academy. Commander Laning says that the decision of the Academy authorities was made only with reluctance and after long consideration. It was led up to by a study of the existing physical condition of the officers of the Navy made by the Surgeon General. Just before and just after the physical test of a ten-mile walk taken in January each officer undergoes a rigid physical examination and a record is made of any defects found. In addition each officer must go through another similar examination whenever he is promoted. Thus there are in the life of every officer these data by which to check his condition.

In studying the present condition of the officers the Surgeon General became impressed with two facts: First, the great increase in recent years in the number of young officers lost to the Services by death or retirement due to physical disability, especially among those who have been athletes; and, second, the great number of young officers who, though they had been athletes at the Naval Academy, had in a few years after graduation developed physical defects. The Surgeon General's study of the subject was thorough. He went over the records of all the officers of the Navy of the classes from 1891 to 1911. He found that of these 625 had been athletes and had left records as athletes. Of these nine were dead and twelve had been retired from causes that may have been the direct or the indirect result of too strenuous athletics. Of these twenty-one, six were lost from tuberculosis, eight from mental or nervous diseases (three suicides due to ill health), two indirectly from alcoholism, one from dilation of the heart, one from valvular disease of the heart (both directly attributable to track and crew racing), and one from injury received in a football game. Of the remaining 604 still in the Service, 198 were found to have disabilities or abnormal conditions of sufficient moment to be incorporated in their official record and to which their records as athletes bear a possible or causative relation. Thus out of 625 athletes, 219 shortly after developed physical defects.

Then a close study was made of the different games. In the inter-class and inter-company schedules the contests were not severe and the training light, but in the contests with outside teams the struggle and the training are severe. The games were investigated from the standpoint of possibility of injury and of long continued strain. Football, on account of the recent changes in the rules which lessen the chances of injury, was retained. There were left only three sports in which exertion is long continued without frequent periods of reaction. These were distance running, swimming and crew racing. As only very short swimming races are held, the board decided to give that sport a clean bill of health. But in crew racing and distance running it was found that there were frequent cases of collapse attended by nausea, fainting and complete exhaustion, showing that the contestant had far exceeded the limit of endurance. All overtraining of the muscles and overstraining of the organs were found to be especially injurious to those who follow the sea, since in life ashore athletes may keep up their training in gymsnasiums, athletic clubs, at tennis, golf, rowing, etc., but at sea these facilities are lacking, and hence there comes a let down on leaving the Academy that is especially dangerous to one who has been a highly trained athlete. Since the American college crews at the "American Henley" at Philadelphia have been rowing the mile and five-sixteenths and found it makes a good racing distance the board decided to make that the top limit. Since the board took its stand on the subject of long distance contests the Surgeon General has made examinations of 580 non-athletes of the same classes, and he has found that in the total number of casualties and recorded defects there was no material difference, and this would make it appear that though generally stronger men at the start, the athletes have gained nothing by their work. Only one of the non-athletes had died of diseases attributable to over-indulgence in athletics, while six athletes had died of these diseases. In diseases ascribable to athletics there was in every instance an excess of fifty per cent. or more cases among the athletes than among the non-athletes. In connection with this paper should be read the paragraph in our issue of June 14, page 1204, giving the findings of the Swedish surgeon Jundell, who examined former noted athletes to ascertain the effect of heart strain upon their systems, the result of his observations being that the heart strain is not such as to cause injury in after life.

WEST POINT OFFICERS WIN AT POLO.

On Wednesday, June 18, the West Point officers' polo team defeated a picked team composed of ex-members of Squadron A, 4½ to 3, in a game played at Piping Rock, Long Island, for cups presented by Miss Jeannette Lockett, sister of Captain Lockett, of the British polo team. The winners lost one and a half goals on fouls, and the losers one goal because of penalties. The game was played without handicap. The teams were:

Squadron A: 1, L. J. Hunt; 2, H. E. Holt; 3, W. Bolton, Jr.; back, C. J. Ross. Goals—Holt 1, Hunt 2, Ross 1; fouls—Hunt, Holt; total score, 3.

West Point: 1, Captain Lindsay and Lieutenant Rumbough; 2, Lieutenant Armstrong; 3, Lieutenant Herr; back, Lieutenant Higley. Goals—Rumbough 1, Armstrong 2, Herr 2, Higley 1; fouls—Armstrong 2, Lindsay; total score, 4½.

The West Point officers' polo team also won the Army cups in the tournament at Piping Rock for teams composed of members or ex-members of the National Guard and Regular Army. But two teams entered. The game was played June 18. Line-up and score as follows:

Ex-Squadron A: 1—Pratt, handicap 1; 2—Boyer, handicap 2; 3—Hunt, L., handicap 3; 4—Earle, handicap 3. Goals—Hunt 2, Boyer 1, Earle 1; safety—Earle; fouls—Hunt, Pratt; total score, 2½.

West Point: 1—Captain Lindsay and Lieutenant Rumbough, handicap 0; 2—Lieutenant Armstrong, handicap 2; 3—Lieutenant Herr, handicap 1; 4—Lieutenant Higley, handicap 3. Goals by handicap, 3; Rumbough 3, Armstrong 2, Herr 2, Higley 2, Lindsey 1; fouls—Armstrong, Lindsey; safety—Higley; total, 11½.

Referee, Major Ross.

VIEWS OF SECRETARY DANIELS.

In the statement of Secretary of the Navy Daniels which appeared in the New York Herald on June 17, following his visit to the Charlestown (Mass.) Navy Yard, there appears a positive line of cleavage between his navy yard policy and that of his immediate predecessor, Mr. Meyer. Mr. Daniels is quoted as saying: "We must be prepared for war. A navy is for business, not for show or armament or the firing of salutes. We must have an adequate Navy, an expansive Navy. And we must be prepared with all this for a sudden emergency. An adequate Navy is our surest guarantee of peace."

"I believe we should have at least one ship under way at each of the three yards—Boston, New York and Norfolk—all the time. We should not only build fuel supply ships, but battleships and cruisers in those yards.

"I would have the Government make its own armor plate and manufacture all its own powder. And all this in line with my belief that the government navy yards, instead of being sold, should be retained and provided with increased equipment. A great advantage, apart from the financial saving, would be the fact that with increased equipment would come a steadier demand for skilled laborers in our navy yards and we could have a dependable trained force always ready. And the advantage of such a trained force in case of sudden trouble could not be overestimated.

"I'm not in favor of closing up the Boston Navy Yard, the Portsmouth Yard and the yard in New York for a grand naval base in Narragansett Bay. It would be almost a crime for the Government to abandon the Boston Yard, where it already has $25,000,000 invested and where it ought to have more. The New York and Portsmouth Yards should be retained and enlarged just as Boston's should be."

Secretary Meyer, it will be recalled, favored concentration of yards. To this subject he had given much thought and had carried his idea with him when he went to Europe, where he tested it by what he saw there, only to return more than ever convinced of the value of yard concentration. This belief of Mr. Meyer was formed after he had been in office for several years and as the fruit of much research. It will be noted that Mr. Daniels has thus far not suggested the retention of yards not practically utilizable, the three mentioned in the above statement being of approved practical value to the Navy and free from the imputation of being "political" yards after the fashion of many political Army posts, so named because they were established for no other purpose presumably than to improve the political fortunes of the member of Congress through whose influence the community obtained the post.

INCREASED PAY FOR NAVY RE-ENLISTMENTS.

An Executive Order of Nov. 27, 1906, provided an increase of pay for trained men of the Navy, but limited its benefits to "enlisted men who are citizens of the United States." In a letter to the chairman of the House Committee on Naval Affairs, dated June 9, 1913, the Secretary of the Navy says: "On Dec. 10, 1912, the Comptroller rendered a decision which, in effect, placed the risk of making payments to enlisted men of the Navy of the increased pay above referred to upon the pay officer making the payment. As a result of this decision many men throughout the Service have been checked various amounts owing to their inability to produce evidence of the fact that they are citizens of the United States, although they may have been carried on the records of the Department as citizens of the United States. The difficulty of securing evidence of birth in the United States and, in many cases, evidence of naturalization is very great, and the desired effect of the Executive Order to encourage American citizens to re-enlist in the Service is more or less vitiated by the necessity of producing evidence of citizenship, and the re-enlistment of experienced men will be reduced by reason of this requirement, since a great many who have already received the additional pay and been discharged will not return for fear of being checked for considerable amounts after they have re-enlisted. In some cases this checkage would amount to several hundred dollars and would work a very great hardship on the men checked."

"The necessity for confining the benefits of increased pay for re-enlistment to citizens of the United States is no longer apparent. On July 1, 1912, only 3.75 per cent. of the entire enlisted force were not citizens of the United States, and of this small number a great many were natives of our insular possessions, who, it is believed, should receive every benefit that may be provided in order to encourage re-enlistment. With the exception of these natives of our insular possessions and of a very few men of foreign citizenship who were previously in the Service, only citizens of the United States have been enlisted or re-enlisted in the Navy since Jan. 5, 1907.

"In view of the above facts, the Department recommends legislation to provide that hereafter American citizenship shall not be a requirement for the payment to enlisted men in the Navy of the increased pay above referred to, and to provide that any enlisted men of the Navy who did not receive the benefits pertaining to re-enlistment, or who received them and were subsequently checked, shall, if such failure or checkage was due to the inability of the men to prove their American citizenship, be entitled to the benefits of the increased pay referred to, provided they were carried on the records of the Navy Department as citizens of the United States during the period in question."

This letter is accompanied by a bill which appears under our Congressional heading as S. 2553.

DECISIONS OF THE COMPTROLLER.

The Adjutant General of the state of Pennsylvania raised the question whether he was authorized to pay from the Militia allotment of the state for the hire of horses of unmounted officers of the Regular Army detailed as instructor-inspectors at the state camps. In reply Assistant Comptroller W. W. Warwick quotes the law in the case and says: "It will be observed that no specific provision is made for the hire of mounts for Regular Army officers from the state's allotment of the fund appropriated under this section as amended; hence, unless the hiring of such mounts can be regarded as an expense incident to the object for which the appropriation was made, not prohibited by law, and not otherwise provided for, the appropriation in question is not available therefor. Service under the details authorized by Section 19 of the Militia Act supra is a military duty that may be required of any officer in the Regular Army. Therefore any authorized expense in connection therewith would appear to be an expense incident to service as an officer of the Regular Army. And since such mounts as the Government is authorized to furnish to officers of the Regular Army are provided for in the appropriations for the support of the Army said appropriations are exclusively available for furnishing mounts to such officers as are entitled to be mounted at government expense. The hiring of mounts for officers of the Regular Army not entitled to be mounted at government expense would be in the nature of an additional compensation and prohibited by Section 1765, Revised Statutes. The question submitted is answered in the negative. As to whether the appropriations for the support of the Army might under any circumstances be available for the hire of mounts for officers detailed for service with the Militia, I am not called upon at this time to decide, but in this connection see decision of this office of April 2, 1913 (19 Comp. Dec., 621)."

VARIOUS NAVAL ITEMS.

The Secretary of the Navy has addressed letters to Comdr. N. A. McCully, U.S.N., commanding officer of the U.S.S. Mayflower; Lieut. R. Henderson, U.S.N., the executive officer, and Lieut. M. E. Manley, U.S.N., the ordnance officer, commanding them upon the fine showing of the Mayflower in the recent elementary practice, that vessel having attained the highest multiple of any of the fifteen vessels of the gunboat class participating in the competition. The Mayflower is awarded the trophy for gunnery for vessels of the gunboat class for the competition year 1912-13. The congratulations of the Department were extended to the officers and crew of the Mayflower on the excellent results of this practice and on the condition of efficiency of the Mayflower as evidenced thereby.

Acting Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt has forwarded a letter of commendation to the commanding officer, the executive officer and the ordnance officer of the U.S.S. Albany, in the Asiatic Station, for having finished No. 1 of the cruiser class in the target practice competition recently concluded.

The Preble and Stewart have been ordered in reserve and the Perry and Hopkins in full commission at the navy yard, Mare Island, Cal.

The Vulcan has been ordered in reserve at the navy yard, Portsmouth, N.H., upon arrival or as soon thereafter as practicable.

The Mayrant has been ordered placed in full commission at the navy yard, New York, as soon as practicable.

The old warship Nipsic, which was recently sold by the Government and converted into a cold storage ship, arrived at Port Townsend, Wash., June 2, 1913, from Seattle, and will be towed to the San Juan Islands to store fish as they are taken from the traps. The Nipsic was purchased from the Government by Capt. George Willey, a cannery operator, who junked the interior and machinery, receiving enough for the junk to convert her into a cold storage craft. The vessel was built in 1873, and is one of those that withstood the typhoon that wrecked so many vessels in Samoa some years ago.

The Navy Department has received a letter from the City Clerk of Vallejo, Cal., written at the request of the City Council, thanking the enlisted men of the Navy and Marine Corps who were on liberty in Vallejo May 3, 1913, for the valuable assistance rendered during a serious conflagration at that place. The City Clerk wrote the following: "But for the prompt action of liberty men who were ashore on this side at the time a portion of this city would have been destroyed. The men, both enlisted men of the Navy and marines, without waiting for orders or invitation, rushed in and saved much valuable property. This is not the first time that we have received valuable assistance from the enlisted men of the Service, and I can assure you that this Council and the citizens of Vallejo deeply appreciate their noble efforts. 'Fear' is a word unknown to them. No matter how great the danger no order is necessary when human life or property is involved."

The Argentine schoolship Presidents Sarmiento arrived at New York June 15 after a trip of 11,454 miles of a 22,875-mile voyage begun at Buenos Aires. The Presidente Sarmiento was formerly a gunboat and has a displacement of 2,754 tons and is a full rigged ship. She has fifteen wardroom officers, nineteen midshipmen and 320 apprentice seamen and men, and presented a handsome appearance as she lay at anchor in the Hudson off the northern part of Hoboken. Among the officers of the schoolship are Commander Esquivel, Lieuts. Carlos A. Siegrist and Oswaldo Repetto, Lieut. Surg.

H. D. Berri, Chief Engr. G. Carminatti and 3d Engr. E. Bianchi. The schoolship will remain in port until June 27, when she will proceed to Halifax.

The Brazilian battleship Minas Geraes, which brought Dr. Lauro Severiano Muller, Minister of Foreign Affairs of Brazil, as special ambassador to the United States, arrived at New York June 17 under escort of the U.S.S. Arkansas, and dropped anchor in the Hudson River off Ninety-sixth street. The Minas Geraes is a formidable looking war craft of 19,281 tons displacement, and was completed in 1910, two years after she was launched. She has one funnel and one military mast. She has a speed of 21.43 knots, and her main battery consists of twelve 12-inch guns. Her hull above the water line was painted a much darker lead color than our ships, while her underbody was coated with an anti-fouling paint of sea green.

Battleships of the North Atlantic Fleet, a squadron of torpedo boat destroyers and a flotilla of submarines will be one of the attractions of Navy Day at Newport, R.I., July 2. The vessels will remain at Newport over July 4. The principal address on Navy Day will be made by Theodore Roosevelt at eleven o'clock in the morning. It will be followed by a clambake, which more than 4,000 persons are expected to attend. There will be fireworks in the night.

The U.S. submarine Thrasher passed the Delaware Breakwater June 18, bound for Cape Cod, convoyed by the tug Baxter for a deep water point on the New England coast, where her trials will be held near Cape Cod about July 15. According to the terms of the contract she must go down 200 feet under the surface of the water, develop a speed of nine knots under the water and fourteen on the surface.

The old U.S.S. Constellation at Newport, R.I., is to be repaired and altered at the navy yard, New York.

The Preble and Stewart have been detached from duty with the torpedo flotilla of the Pacific Fleet, and assigned to duty with the Reserve Torpedo Group, Mare Island.

The Perry and Hopkins have been detached from duty with the Reserve Torpedo Group, Mare Island, and assigned to duty with the torpedo flotilla, Pacific Fleet.

The Milwaukee was placed in commission in ordinary at the navy yard, Puget Sound, Wash., on June 17, 1913.

The Milwaukee has been assigned to duty with the Pacific Reserve Fleet.

ARMY-NAVY BASEBALL AT FORT ADAMS.

Fort Adams, R.I., June 18, 1913.

In an Army-Navy baseball game at Fort Adams, R.I., on June 15, the officers of Fort Adams defeated the officers of the battleship Wyoming by the score of 8 to 3 in a well played game. It was hard fought throughout and during the nine innings there were many brilliant plays by the players from both teams. Captain Perkins, for the Army, though wild, was effective when hits meant runs. He allowed but three hits during the game. Chaplain Kunnecke, of the Army team, though slightly overweight, accepted two chances neatly. His second was a brilliant running catch of a line drive just at the height of his shoe tops.

Fort Adams figured in three double plays, two of which were highly spectacular. With a man on first in the fifth inning the Navy batter slammed a line drive just to the right of second base. Lieutenant Watrous, who was dashing for second to head off an attempted steal, trapped the ball deftly, touched second base, and threw to Lieutenant Harrison in time to retire the batter.

In the ninth inning another double play laid low the hopes of the Navy. With men on first and second and one out, Lieutenant Cohen, of the Navy, drove a slashing liner to center field. Lieutenant Phelan stopped the ball in its mad flight, recovered it before it touched the ground and threw to Lieutenant Watrous in time to retire the base runner, who had left second in an attempt to score on what promised to be a home run.

In the first inning Lieutenant Mountford hit the first ball pitched to him to deep center field for a home run. In the sixth inning Lieutenant Harrison smashed one of Lieutenant Noyes' out curves to right field for a complete circuit of the bases.

For the Navy Lieutenant Cohen at short stop was everywhere behind second and third base, gathering in "Texas Leaguers" labeled hits. In the second inning Ensign Curley made a fine running catch near the right field foul line.

The game was well attended by the Army-Navy set of the vicinity. Refreshments were served during the game by the ladies of the garrison. After the game the players and those in attendance were entertained at the quarters of Capt. and Mrs. Thomas F. Dwyer and Lieutenant Harrison. The game was enjoyed by all, and it is hoped that other games will be played with the officers of the battleship Wyoming and of the other ships on duty in Narragansett Bay. Among those present cheering for the Navy were Rear Admiral and Mrs. Caperton, Miss Caperton, Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. Cage, Lieut. and Mrs. Morrison, Mrs. Kilgore, Mrs. Reginald Norman, Miss Alice Little, Paymaster Chew, Mrs. Duryea, Commander Bricker and Ensign Patterson. Among the Army adherents were all the officers of the garrison and their families.

The Navy Department has received the record of the court of inquiry held recently at the Norfolk Navy Yard to investigate an allegation made by Rear Admiral Robert M. Doyle, commandant of that yard, in a fitness report upon Capt. John G. Quinby, commanding the receiving ship. Captain Quinby took exception to the allegations as a reflection upon him and asked the Secretary of the Navy for a complete investigation.

Ensign B. N. McCandlish, U.S.N., in the June Proceedings of the Naval Institute makes a plea for a khaki uniform for the bluejacket landing force. He says that certain vessels in our Navy have more need for an effective landing force than for good shooting with the ship's guns. Yet the landing force from such ships is thrown ashore either in white or the blue uniform, making one of the best targets for the enemy. In the landing force and small-arms instructions, he pathetically adds, is a sentence which reads, "Visibility draws fire," and yet he points out that officers who were landed at Guantanamo in 1909 speak of the ease with which the U.S. marines made approaches without being discovered, whereas the bluejackets in their whites were visible at all times. Surg. Robert E. Hoyt, U.S.N., tells of the expedient used by our men in Nicaragua of rolling in the mud to decrease visibility. To the argument advanced by some naval officers that our landing force is under fire so seldom that we can afford to put men ashore in the present uniforms, Ensign McCandlish replies that the same reasoning would equip them with flintlocks or with old Springfield rifles. Out in China and Central America our gunboats are often called upon to land men in emergencies, and these men should be ready to do actual and effective fighting. While the khaki would complicate the question of keeping the crew in uniform, that disagreeable feature would have to be borne with.

A very successful athletic meet was held at Newport, R.I., June 14, under the auspices of the Army and Navy Y.M.C.A. on Fort Adams Field for men of the vessels of the Atlantic Fleet in port and those on duty in the harbor forts. The points won by the men representing the ships and stations were as follows: First, Fort Adams, 21 1-3; second, Torpedo Station, 19; third, Training Station, 15; fourth, U.S.S. Kansas, 14; fifth, U.S.S. Louisiana, 10; sixth, Fort Greble, 8 1-3; seventh, U.S.S. Wyoming, 6; eighth, U.S.S. North Dakota, 3 1-3. The winners in each event were the following: Running high jump, Seever, U.S.S. New Jersey, 5 ft. 7 ins.; pole vault, Paquette, U.S.S. Kansas, 8 ft. 10 ins.; running broad jump, Chapman, Fort Adams, 19 ft. 6 ins.; shot put, McKernan, U.S.S. Kansas, 37 ft. 6 ins.; 100-yard dash, McKenzie, Fort Adams, 10 2-5 secs.; 440-yard dash, Trouser, Louisiana, 56 1-5 secs.; one-mile run, Nye, Torpedo Station, 4 min. 56 secs.; 4-5 mile relay race, won by Training Station, 2 min. 57 secs.; pentathlon, won by Nye, Torpedo Station, 13 points.

In the June number of the Proceedings of the Naval Institute, Comdr. Yates Stirling, jr., discusses "Organization for Naval Administration"; Comdr. W. W. Phelps "Naval Industrialism"; Lieut. Comdr. WEST POINT.

West Point, N.Y., June 18, 1913.

The new Fourth Class of cadets entered the Academy on Saturday and number 167. There is one Chinese and one Filipino cadet in the class. The Chinese cadet is Ting-Fu Wang, reported to have held the rank of captain in the Chinese army, who is admitted by special act of Congress passed in 1911 at the request of the old Chinese government. At the conclusion of his military training here he expects to join the forces of the new republic. He is twenty-two years old. Six months before the revolution swept the Manchu throne out of existence Captain Wang came to this country to prepare himself for West Point, and has taken a course in civil engineering at Tufts College. He is said to be a graduate of the Chinese Paotung Military Academy, which was established by Prince Tsai-tao, former chief of the Chinese army staff; also a brother of Major Gen. Ting-Jerb Wang, commander-in-chief of the Chili Provincial Army, which now garrisoned Pekin. He will be the third Chinese educated at West Point. In the Class of 1909 two of his countrymen graduated, Ying-Shing Wen and Ting-Chia Chen. They are now in China, the former reported as taking active part in the revolution, and the latter as professor of military science in the Peking War College. The Philippine cadet is Luis Salvoa y Rada. Two other Filipinos are here as cadets. One will be graduated next year; the other is of the furlough class.

The new cadets are quartered in barracks until July 1, when they will be moved to camp. About Aug. 1 it is expected that there will be another addition to the class. An examination will be held in July in an effort to fill the remaining vacancies. The "pebbles" admitted Saturday will bring the total number of cadets in the corps up close to 600.

Camp was opened on Friday, the corps marching with due ceremony across the plain under command of Colonel Sladen. The yearlings have come into their own and have been enjoying their first glimpse into the pleasures of yearling camp.

On Wednesday morning Dr. Lauro Severiano Muller, special ambassador from Brazil to the United States, arrived at West Point on the destroyer McCall. The superintendent and staff made a boarding call immediately and Dr. Muller and party then came ashore and were taken in automobiles to the plain, accompanied by an escort of Cavalry. A salute of nineteen guns was then fired and the Corps of Cadets reviewed. After the review the party was escorted to the officers' mess, which had been attractively decorated in the flags of America and Brazil. Luncheon was served there, Colonel Townsley's guests being Dr. Muller and party, Colonels Fieberger, Gordon, Bethel, Keefer, Holt, Robinson, Echols, Sladen, Tschappat, Majors Clayton and Murray, Captain Youngberg. After luncheon the party was shown over the post and taken in the principal buildings, the chapel being especially admired by the members of the party. Major Gen. Thomas H. Barry was among the guests at the dinner given by the Chamber of Commerce of New York city on Wednesday evening in honor of Dr. Lauro S. Muller, the Brazilian Minister of Foreign Affairs. The captain of the Brazilian man-of-war that brought Dr. Muller to New York called upon the commanding general on Thursday morning.

The Imperator, the new ship of the Hamburg-American Line, passed Governors Island on Thursday morning and an excellent view of it was had by large numbers of people from the seawall, the castle and other points of observation, the vessel dipping her flag as she passed.

NATIONAL GUARD NEWS.

2D INFANTRY, N.Y.—COL. J. M. ANDREWS.

One of the best orders issued by any colonel in the National Guard of New York is G.O. No. 4, issued by Colonel Andrews, commanding the 2d Infantry, with particular reference to the fourth paragraph. This order, which is dated Troy, June 6, 1913, is as follows:

1. To conform to the requirements of the Regular Army, all officers and men of this command, regardless of age or previous record of typhoid fever, will, without delay, be immunized by the administration of the typhoid prophylactic.

2. Major Becker, H.C., is charged with the enforcement of this order and will make requisition for the necessary vaccine direct to the chief surgeon, division.

3. A careful report of each treatment and the resulting reaction will be made and forwarded to these headquarters and to company commanders as per G.O. 24 D. 1913.

4. The custom of allowing men whose enlistments have expired to remain in the Service without re-enlisting will be stopped from this date. All commanding officers will immediately inspect their rolls and either re-enlist those desirable men whose terms have expired or apply for the proper discharge, according to Article XVII R.

A review of the provisional company of Infantry, N.G. N.Y., will be held at Van Cortlandt Park, New York city, on Saturday afternoon, June 21, and probably by Governor Sulzer. This fine company will give a rare opportunity to the people of New York city and also military men, to witness what an up-to-date model company at war strength, working like a machine, is like. This company which has had six weeks of training indoors and three weeks daily drill in the field at Peekskill, is in perfect shape of discipline and drill, its instruction being of the most practical description, including the use of ball cartridges in combat exercises at dummy defenders in trenches, the firing being at unknown distances. Every man in the company was specially selected from among the seven Infantry regiments in New York city and measures up to the physical standards prescribed for the Army. It was organized pursuant to the system of organization recommended for our next war by the Infantry Board of the U.S. Army, based upon experiments with the provisional regiment of the Army last summer at Sparta, Wis. It is the only command in the United States to-day which is in possession of and using the new Infantry pack and military sweater. The review will be held on the parade ground near the old Van Cortlandt Mansion and will be an object lesson for all attending. In addition to the review there will be drills in close and extended order, in which blank cartridges will be used.

Field Hospital No. 1, Penn. N.G., will encamp with the 2d Brigade at Erie, Pa., July 5 to July 12, inclusive, and is attached to the 2d Brigade for the period of the encampment.

Close on 500 officers of the Penn. N.G. attended the camp of instruction for officers at Mt. Gretna, and it was about the most beneficial camp in the history of the Guard of the state. The school was conducted with twenty-six officers of the Army as instructors and proved not only valuable, but very popular with the student officers who availed themselves of every opportunity to learn.

The camp of Infantry officers of the Massachusetts Militia, to be held from June 22 to 27, inclusive, comprises a program of the most valuable description, and those attending will receive practical instruction in the many essentials of military life that should be of lasting benefit.

An open competition to officers and men of the N.G.N.Y. for ten places on the rifle team to represent the state at Camp Perry, Ohio, in the National Team Match will be held on the rifle range at Peekskill, N.Y., Friday, July 4, commencing at 9 a.m. A train will leave the Grand Central Depot at 7:35 a.m., July 4, which officers and men from Greater New York who desire to shoot should take. Ammunition will be furnished on the range. The names of officers and men desiring to compete for places on the team must be sent to division headquarters, 280 Broadway, New York city, so as to arrive there by July 1. Those who win a place on the team will be reimbursed for their expenses incidental to the competition.

Co. F, 22d Regt., N.Y., Capt. Dieses, held its first invitation "company hop" on Tuesday, June 17, in their company parlor, which proved a very successful affair. Capt. William A. Ross, Co. A, formerly first lieutenant of Co. F, was the guest of the evening and was agreeably surprised by being presented with a handsome gold wrist watch by the officers and men of his old company as a mark of their esteem and congratulations.

The annual church service of the 13th N.Y. will be held in the Clinton Avenue Congregational Church, Brooklyn, on June 29. Chaplain Boynton will preach the sermon.

The body of Col. Wallace A. Downs, who commanded the 71st N.Y. Volunteers during the Spanish-American War, was transferred June 15 from the Masons' plot in Mount Hope Cemetery, Hastings-on-Hudson, N.Y., to the regimental plot there. Permission to make the change was obtained from Mrs. Downs, the Masons of Crescent Lodge and Colonel Bates, of the 71st Regiment. The Veterans' Association went to the cemetery and gathered about the plot. As the coffin was lowered into the new grave, Gen. Edward A. McAlpin, president of the Association, spoke of the life of Colonel Downs and said that the Veterans' Association intended to erect a fitting monument over the body. Chaplain Edgar Tilton also spoke and Bugler J. C. Koechig sounded "Taps."

In speaking of the complimentary notice of Brig. Gen. Henry DeW. Hamilton, The Adjutant General of New York, which appeared in our last issue on page 1266, in referring to his aid in securing desirable legislation for the National Guard, Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan, commanding the National Guard of New York said: "I was very much pleased to read in the Army and Navy Journal the praise accorded to General Hamilton for his efforts in aiding to increase the efficiency of the National Guard. The results obtained by General Hamilton since he has been adjutant general have been truly remarkable. He has been so intensely occupied since he took hold, in reorganizing his office, attending to the many important duties of the office of adjutant general, and preparing and following up military legislation, that he has not had time to travel about the state and meet the officers of the guard, and for this reason the magnitude and importance of the work done by him is not yet generally known. This last session of the Legislature, largely through the tact and judgment of General Hamilton stands out as a banner year, so far as the military service is concerned."

Lieut. Col. Henry H. Rogers, 1st Field Art., N.G.N.Y., has been nominated by Major General O'Ryan for appointment as colonel by Governor Sulzer, and we believe the selection an excellent one. Colonel Rogers has shown a deep interest in the military, has attended Army schools, has studied foreign artillery abroad, and is at present attending the School of Fire at Fort Sill, Okla. He has been present on field duty with the organizations he has been connected with when such duty was ordered and has shirked no hard work. The more gentlemen of his stamp who take an interest in the National Guard the better it will be for the service. Some silly and unjust articles have appeared in some daily papers, coupling so-called "Standard Oil methods," with the name of Colonel Rogers in connection with his being a candidate several years ago for colonel of the 69th N.Y., but these articles have proved harmless. Colonel Rogers will take the place of Col. N. B. Thurston, chief ordnance officer of the National Guard, who has been in temporary command of the regiment, and who, by reason of his ordnance work and as captain of the state rifle team, has too much detail on his hands. Colonel Rogers joined the National Guard on March 8, 1904, as a second lieutenant in Company A, of the 12th N.Y., and was later promoted to first lieutenant and captain and resigned from the regiment Feb. 20, 1908. He became a first lieutenant in the 22d Engineers in March, 1908, and the same month was detailed as aid on the staff of Brig. Gen. George Moore Smith, 1st Brigade. On Jan. 1, 1911, he was appointed an aid to Governor Dix. In October, 1911, he became captain of the 2d Battalion of Field Artillery and was later appointed major and then lieutenant colonel.

ILLINOIS NATIONAL GUARD.

During this season of the year the interest of the Chicago Guardsmen is about equally divided between preparation for the summer encampment and the Camp Logan rifle range. Camp Logan is located forty-three miles north of Chicago on the shore of Lake Michigan and is reached by the Chicago and Northwestern Railway. Numerous trains carry soldiers from the city to the range any day in the week, but the most numerous detachments go out on Saturday or Sunday morning trains, and nearly all return on a military special train leaving the range at 5:05 p.m. Sunday, arriving in the city about 6:15 p.m. This arrangement allows the Guardsmen a Saturday and Sunday outing and a chance to do his rifle practice at the same time. This Sunday evening military special train frequently carries as many as six hundred men.

The range at Camp Logan is now equipped with a two-story arsenal and office building made entirely of concrete, five regimental tile-roofed concrete barracks equipped with shower baths and running water, a range officers' cottage and a large and complete mess hall with quarters for help. The quarters are ample to accommodate 1,000 men and 200 officers, and the firing line will accommodate 300 persons firing at the same time, including all the ranges from 200 to 1,000 yards and the skirmish and expert courses. Some idea may be formed of the amount of rifle practice at Camp Logan, from the fact that the season of 1912 consumed 864,000 rounds of service ammunition in teaching the young American soldier how to shoot.

You Beer Drinkers

Read the following opinion of a scientist, an authority who has experimented and therefore knows that "light starts decay even in pure beer."

"We have tested beers repeatedly, placing the bottles in the direct sunlight, and testing the same after one, two, three and five minutes exposure found that the beer with three and five minutes exposure became undrinkable on account of the peculiar odor developed. The detrimental effect of light upon beer can be successfully counteracted by the employment of brown or dark colored glass bottles, and such bottles are, therefore, recommendable."

We have adopted every invention, every innovation, every idea that could make for purity.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Questions must be accompanied by the name and address of the writer. Questions are answered as soon as possible, but no particular time can be given for replies. We do not answer questions by mail.

E. B. D.—Just at this time there are eligible remaining on the list for second lieutenancies in Philippine Scouts. At last accounts it was the intention of the War Department that any remaining on this list Nov. 1 next would be ineligible for appointment next year unless re-examined at the regular time this November.

A SUBSCRIBER.—Entrance to the Medical Corps of the Navy is by way of graduation from a civilian medical college and examination for the corps. There is a Navy Medical College in Washington for surgeons entering the Navy. Circulars prescribing conditions for admission to the Navy Medical Reserves and Navy Medical Corps are obtainable from the Surgeon General of the Navy.

A.—Troops in Hawaii are not considered part of a colonial army. The colonial regiments are in the Philippines; they are the 7th and 8th Cavalry, 8th, 13th, 15th and 24th Infantry. Service in Hawaii is considered foreign service except for extra pay, and double computation toward retirement of enlisted men. Officers and men are returned from the Philippines at end of a three years' tour, the colonial organizations remaining; while from Hawaii the organizations as well as officers and men may expect to be returned after a three years' tour. No orders forecasting future movements are out, regarding organizations in Hawaii. Latest information will be found in our table of Army Stations.

G. R. M. asks: (1) Can a private in the Infantry transfer to the Hospital Corps? (2) Also can he get a special assignment on foreign station? Answer: (1) Yes, if there is a vacancy and the application is approved. (2) Apply through channel.

J. K. asks: (1) Can a Q.M. sergeant hold a rated position such as gun pointer in the Coast Artillery Corps? (2) If a soldier enlists on Dec. 31 does he receive pay and clothing allowances for that date? (3) What date did the 4th U.S. Infantry leave Cuba in 1898, and what date did they arrive in the Philippines in 1899? Answer: (1) No. (2) Yes. (3) Left Cuba about Aug. 15, 1898, arriving in U.S. Aug. 19, 1898; arrived in Philippines March 10, 1899, having sailed from New York Jan. 19.

G. W. A. asks: A man enlisted in the Army in March, 1898, giving wrong age, received an honorable discharge. Next enlistment enlists showing discharge which shows wrong age and the same on third enlistment and same on fourth enlistment; second, third, fourth enlistment in Navy. Can this man get his age changed without a court-martial, and how will he go about getting his records changed? Answer: Apply through the channel, giving full statement.

MEDALS.—We do not understand that New Jersey has issued medals for the Spanish-American War, but the New York Legislature has recently enacted a bill to confer medals upon all New York state veterans of the Spanish-American War.

T. H. L.—Troop E, 6th Cav., in the war with Spain in 1898 had two months' foreign service (minus time, six or eight days, going to and from the island).

M. C. S.—Your question regarding the post tailors' accounts is not clear. If you have paid on an order from him, you cannot be expected to pay again, but if you still owe Logan will realize the importance of the order of Capt. Frank W. Sherwood, chief range officer, which holds all enlisted men back from the depot until the train has come to a full stop before allowing them to approach the train to board it, thus making accidents less liable to occur. This is only one of the many changes for the better contemplated by Captain Sherwood. First Lieut. Alvin I. Whiteside, post adjutant, is putting into execution the plans of Captain Sherwood as fast as the force of men he has in hand can do the work.

June 7, 1913, will go down in the history of Camp Logan as one of the coldest and windiest June days ever experienced on the range. The wind reached a velocity of nearly forty miles an hour. Capt. Charles Roth and Lieut. Andrew J. L. Vandandaigue headed a party from the 7th Infantry which went to Camp Logan on the above date. The fact that three and one-half points of windage were required at the 600-yard range will give the experienced rifleman some idea of its force. However, one member of the party pulled out with forty-five points at the 600-yard range and the others did pretty well considering the wind and cold.

Though the cold of June 7 had frightened many from going to the range, there was a total attendance on June 8 of 359 men and forty-nine officers, making in all 408. In striking contrast with the wind and cold of June 7 and 8 was the intense heat of the 14th and 15th, which were as hot as the most sultry days of any July or August. Many heat prostrations occurred in this city, among them was that of Major John V. Clinnin, of the 1st Infantry, who was conducting the military tournament for the benefit of St. Vincent's Orphan Asylum on June 14. The Major was not seriously injured and has fully recovered.

The Artillery Battalion of the Illinois National Guard will not go into a regular encampment this year, but instead will have a practice march the same as the Cavalry regiment. Their route has not been selected as yet. Their date is Aug. 16 to 23. Battery B, of the Artillery Battalion, will hold an election on the 20th instant for captain, one first lieutenant and one second lieutenant. First Lieut. Frank M. Course, commanding the battery, will undoubtedly be elected captain, and the men of the battery have nominated two sergeants of the battery for the two lieutenancies. The result of the court-martial of 2d Lieut. Martin Peterson, of this battery, charged with disobedience of orders, is promised soon.

The regimental competition by companies for position in the state team competition was held at Camp Logan on June 15, on a terribly hot day. The leading companies of each regiment were as follows: Co. A, 1st Inf., Capt. Adolph J. Borgmeier, led with a total of 583 points out of 750; Troop A, 1st Cav., Capt. Joseph W. Mattes, was second with a total of 582 points out of 750; Co. G, 7th Inf., Capt. Charles Roth, was third with 579 points out of 750; Co. D, 2d Inf., and Co. L, 3d Inf., followed. This competition was among company teams of five men each for the honor of representing their regiments in the state competition. The ranges were 200 yards slow and rapid fire and 600 yards slow fire.

The attendance at Camp Logan rifle range on June 15 was nearly 800 officers and men which is about the largest in the history of the range. Col. Daniel Moriarty commanding the 7th Infantry, had the misfortune to lose his brother, James Moriarty, a city policeman, from blood poisoning the result of a carbuncle.

Second Lieut. Ernest C. Ermel, of Co. H, 2d Inf., has been promoted to first lieutenant of the same company. Capt. Edward C. Bittel, commanding Co. K, 1st Inf., who was accidentally shot through the leg some time ago while at indoor rifle instruction, has fully recovered from the effects of the same.

P. W. D. asks: Can a man about to be discharged at the end of his enlistment and who has two months to do before retirement, put in for a two months' furlough, and at the end of his furlough ask to be placed on the retired list? My enlistment expires this Christmas and March 1, 1914, can be retired. Could I apply for a furlough or would I have to wait out the other two months before asking to be retired? Answer: A furlough will not be granted to a soldier about to be discharged. See A.R. 106. Re-enlist and then apply for retirement to take effect March 1, 1914, if that is your correct date.

PROPHYLAXIS.—The preventive methods used and recommended for the disease you refer to were briefly alluded to on page 285, our issue of Nov. 9, 1912, in our digest of the annual report of the Surgeon General of the Army. For fuller description see the official report for 1912, pages 57-71.

The old brick barracks, built before the Civil War, are to have their walls inside scraped and painted at a cost of about $4,000. While this is indeed welcome news, as the improvement is badly needed, it does seem as if the proper policy would be to tear down the building and build new barracks in another location. About $10,000 has been spent on this building in the past year, and it is still far from being in good condition.

The reconstruction of the main road of the post is going on, and when completed will finish what is probably the most needed improvement in the post. Granolithic walks and macadam construction are specified for this work. It is sincerely hoped that some money can be appropriated at once to furnish a bath house for the enlisted men of this garrison. The last one was blown away in a hurricane in December, 1911, and since that time the men have been obliged to undress in barracks, walk about a half-mile in bathing suits to the water. OUR TROOPS IN CHINA.

Tientsin, China, May 20, 1913.

The Taotai of Chihli Province, Feng Ko Chang and Mr. Hsu Yuan, Customs Superintendent and Commissioner of Foreign Affairs, gave a dinner to the officers of the Chinese Expedition, the American Consul General and representative Americans of Tientsin on May 9. The officers accepting and present were Major C. C. Clark, Captains M. C. Kerth, Bryan Conrad and R. H. Silliman, Lieut. C. L. Sampson, F. M. Miller, Alva Lee and D. H. Cowles, 15th Inf. Among the Chinese officials present were the Taotai, the Commissioners of Foreign Affairs, Education and Finance, and the Speaker of the Provincial Assembly, all of whom made speeches of welcome and also referred to the recent recognition by the United States of the Chinese Republic, which were responded to by Consul General S. S. Knabenshue (father of Capt. F. G. Knabenshue, 12th Inf., and Roy Knabenshue, the aviator), Major Clark, Captain Conrad and Mr. W. C. Allen, an official of the Kailan Mining Administration of Tientsin.

Hundreds of visitors of all nationalities went out to the East Arsenal on May 10 to witness the French military sports, and none was disappointed, as the different events were interesting and the French proved excellent hosts. The open events and winners of places follow: 100 meters, 15th Infantry, won all three places; high jump, 15th Infantry 1st, French 2d, British 3d; 110 meter hurdles, French, 15th Infantry, British; running broad jump, French, British, 15th Infantry; 400 meters, Belgian, 15th Infantry, British; standing broad jump, French won all three places; shot put, Germans, 15th Infantry, Belgian; 5,000 meters, all three places won by British; discus throw, Belgian, French; relay race, 15th Infantry, British, French; pole vault, Germans, 15th Infantry, French; tug-of-war, French team from Peking beat French team of the East Arsenal. Summary of places:

	1st.	2d.	3d.	Total.
French	4	3	5	12
Americans	3	5	2	10
English	1	3	3	7
Belgians	3	0	1	4
Germans	2	0	0	2

A most interesting feature was the entrance into the grounds of the battery of Creusot field guns, and the rapidity with which the guns were placed in position and the firing of blanks commenced won the admiration of all present. Several clowns held the attention of the children, and after the last event they presented each child with a small box of candy. Prizes were distributed at the close by M. Conty, French Minister to Peking.

Major P. E. Pierce, Capt. W. A. McDaniel, Lieuts. J. D. Elliott, L. A. McClure, H. L. Walhall and E. Santschi, Jr., 15th Inf., returned on the train-de-luxe May 17 from their visit to the Manchurian battlefields. They report a very interesting and instructive trip, and that much of the success of the visit is due to the many courtesies extended to them by the Japanese officers with whom they came in contact. At nearly every stop the Japanese furnished them an interpreter and guide, and in addition, at two or three places, mounts.

The Tientsin Race Club's spring meeting, which closed on May 17, after three exceptionally successful days, attracted large crowds of the cosmopolitan residents of Tientsin, the military contingents being well represented each day. After the close of the Saturday races, Mrs. H. L. Walhall gave a tea at her home, No. 4 Army Terrace for Lieut. and Mrs. E. S. Adams, 15th Inf., Miss V. Rafferty, niece of Major Clark, Lieut. and Mrs. C. C. McCormack, M.C., Lieut. and Mrs. F. M. Miller and Lieuts. G. A. Sanford and Patrick Frisell, 15th Inf.

On May 7 Cos. I and K, 15th Inf., left to relieve Cos. C and D, 15th Inf., along the railroad. Company I, under Capt. J. M. Love, Jr., 15th Inf., goes to Tongshan, sending a detachment of thirty men to Kaiping. Company K, under 1st Lieut. J. C. Drain, 15th Inf., to Kuyeh, sending a detachment of forty men to Leichwang and twenty men to Wali. Through this change Capt. F. W. Rowell, Lieuts. E. S. Adams, W. R. Wheeler and D. H. Cowles, 15th Inf., take station at Tientsin; Capt. J. M. Love, Jr., and Lieut. J. G. Waterman, 15th Inf., at Tongshan, and Lieuts. J. C. Drain and William H. Morris, Jr., 15th Inf., at Kuyeh. Mrs. Waterman and Mrs. Drain accompanied their husbands. Companies I and K are now serving their second tour of four months at stations along the Chinese Government Railway, Peking-Mukden line.

Lieut. and Mrs. E. S. Adams have taken temporary quarters at No. 12 Wilhelmstrasse, German Concession; Lieut. and Mrs. W. R. Wheeler at the Imperial Hotel, French Concession, Capt. F. W. Rowell at No. 13 Elgin avenue, British Concession, and Lieut. D. H. Cowles at No. 2 British Bund. Lieut. Col. James B. Erwin, L.G., Phil. Dept., accompanied by Col. F. B. Jones and Capt. L. C. Brown, Q.M.C., D.Q.M., was in Peking on May 11 to confer with the U.S. Minister relative to the disposition of American troops in China.

Lieut. George T. Everett, 8th Inf., recently promoted from the 15th Infantry, and Mrs. Everett left at noon on May 11 on a boat of the Nippon Yusen Kaisha line for Nagasaki, where they will connect with the China for Manila, en route to join the 8th Infantry. Lieut. and Mrs. Everett joined the China Expedition last March and regret very much a change of regiment and station from China to the Southern Islands. A large number of officers and ladies of the command went down to the German Bund to wish them farewell.

Capt. W. P. Upshur and Thomas Holcomb, Jr., and Lieut. O. Floyd and fifteen enlisted men of the U.S.M.C., American Legion Guard at Peking, arrived on May 9 to participate in the open championship of North China rifle competition, which was held on May 10 and 12. Excellent weather prevailed on Saturday and the score sheet for 200 yards at the end of the day showed Sergt. J. J. Andrews, of the Marines, high with 34, a member of the Tientsin Rifle Club, Mr. William Simms, second with 33, and Lieut. B. A. Dixon and Capt. W. P. Upshur, U.S.M.C., tied for third place with 32. Shooting at 500 and 600 yards was resumed at 10:30 a.m. Monday, but such a strong wind was blowing that after a few shots it became impossible to work the targets, the wind often blowing them out of the frames. At noon it was decided to have each competitor fire his string of eight shots without changing the target, indicating position and value of shot with the disk, and to proceed with the firing, although it was necessary to fasten guy ropes to the upper corner of each target. Notwithstanding a twenty-five to thirty-mile wind, Sergeant Andrews made the excellent scores of 33 and 31 at 500 and 600 yards, giving him a final total of 98. The well known shot of the 15th Infantry, Battalion Sergt. Major George Sayer won second place with 93, and Captain Upshur, U.S.M.C., third, with 92. The prizes consisted of three very pretty cups presented by the members of the Tientsin Rifle Club, under whose auspices the competition was held. The ten high places were held by the Americans, which is evidence of their superior marksmanship. The French and Germans did not enter, they claiming that their rifles and ammunition were inferior to those of the Americans. On the evening of May 12 the competitors of the Marine Corps were given a smoker at the enlisted men's mess on Bruce Road by the competitors of the 15th Infantry, at which a very pleasant time was had by all, the Marines demonstrating the fact that they were good entertainers as well as marksmen. The Marine Corps competitors stopped at the Imperial Hotel in Tientsin, and upon their return to Peking they were met at Chein Men station by the Marine Corps band and a large number of Marines, who escorted them to their barracks with many cheers for the Marine Corps and 15th Infantry.

Capt. Bryan Conrad, 15th Inf., has been relieved as regimental commissary and detailed as regimental quartermaster, 15th Infantry; he has also been detailed as assistant to the quartermaster, China Expedition, relieving Lieut. C. L. Sampson, of those duties. Lieut. B. A. Dixon, 15th Inf., has been transferred from Company I to Company D, 15th Inf., with station in Tientsin.

Capt. J. M. Love, Jr., 15th Inf., stationed at Tongshan, has been sick with pneumonia, but is reported improving. Lieut. W. R. Wheeler, 15th Inf., accompanied by Mrs. Wheeler, left on a ten-day leave on May 19 for Peking, and intend to visit all points of interest in that vicinity.

The German gunboat Tiger, which arrived at Tientsin, May 17, has attracted many visitors, due to the fact that although she is carrying small guns, it is equipped with many modern installations, including wireless. It will leave in four or five days for a cruise down the China coast.

The estimates of the War Office of the British Government for the current year provide for an increase of 900 men in their North China command, which will bring their total number of troops in this vicinity to approximately 3,000.

LUDLOW BARRACKS.

Ludlow Barracks, Parang, Mindanao, P.I., April 27, 1913.

On March 27 the Merritt brought Col. and Mrs. Tillson and their daughter, Mrs. Goodwin, Capt. and Mrs. Lewis and Frederick, Jr., and Dr. and Mrs. Allen and two small sons. The newcomers were charmed with the beauties of Parang and the friendly welcome extended them by the older residents. Lieut. and Mrs. Twyman, Mrs. Price, Mrs. Lincoln, Mrs. Jones, Mrs. Goodwin, Lieutenant Grey and Lieutenant Sandford with a goodly quota of the post's youngsters, made a launch trip to Cotabato on April 1. A very good lunch was enjoyed and Cotabato ransacked for brass chow bowls and kindred ware. Mr. Grey and Mr. Sandford went farther up the river for a hunting trip and upon their return to us received admiration for their prowess as hunters and gratitude for their generosity with their game.

Mrs. Lincoln entertained the Morning Card Club on April 3, Mesdames Price, Jones, Lincoln and Allen playing bridge and Mesdames Lewis, Goodwin and Twyman playing five hundred. The Wright on April 5 brought us Company D from Jolo with Captain Trott and Lieutenant Uhl as appreciable additions to our little "set." On Sunday, April 6, Major Hirsch, Dr. and Mrs. Jones, Mrs. Goodwin, Captain Trott, Mr. Grey, Lieutenant Uhl and Sandford went in vintas to Sugat for a Moro fiesta.

The Evening Card Club was delightfully entertained by Capt. and Mrs. Price on April 10. The ladies enjoyed the Morning Card Club at Mrs. Jones's on April 7. Lieut. and Mrs. Lincoln gave a pretty dinner April 10 for Capt. and Mrs. Lewis, Mrs. Goodwin, Captain Trott, Lieutenant Grey and Uhl.

Colonel Hersey and Major Gilhauser were on the Wright when she stopped on her way to Davao. Colonel Hersey was a dinner guest of Col. and Mrs. Tillson. Dr. and Mrs. Jones were hosts at dinner April 15 for Col. and Mrs. Tillson, Mrs. Goodwin and Captain Trott. The next evening Capt. and Mrs. Price entertained in an equally delightful way for Col. and Mrs. Tillson, Capt. and Mrs. Lewis, Mrs. Goodwin and Captain Trott. Dr. and Mrs. Allen gave a pretty and jolly dinner for Dr. and Mrs. Jones, Lieut. and Mrs. Lincoln, Mrs. Goodwin and Lieutenant Sandford.

The Evening Card Club on April 19 were delightfully entertained by Dr. and Mrs. Jones. A few nights later Lieut. and Mrs. Lincoln took Dr. and Mrs. Allen and Mrs. Goodwin to the moving picture show. April 24 the Morning Card Club met with Mrs. Lewis.

At the club on April 25 Major Hirsch, Captain Trott, Lieutenants Grey, Uhl and Sandford were hosts at a beautiful dinner dance. A native orchestra from Parang furnished good dancing music, and the affair will be long remembered. Lieut. and Mrs. Lincoln gave a beautiful dinner April 24 for Col. and Mrs. Tillson, Mrs. Goodwin, Major Hirsch, Dr. Jones and Mr. Uhl.

The Merritt came in April 26. We were all glad to see Major Johnson, Lieutenants Walker and Hobson, of the regiment, and glad to welcome Capt. and Mrs. Mould and baby daughter and Dr. and Mrs. Squiers and infant.

Major Johnson and Mr. Hobson were dinner guests of Col. and Mrs. Tillson April 26. We have all missed Capt. and Mrs. Dolph and children and Lieut. and Mrs. Twyman and little family. Both families have gone to the homeland. Major Winn and Lieut. and Mrs. Jones are temporary absentees.

CAMP STOTSENBURG.

Camp Stotsenburg, Pampanga, P.I., May 14, 1913.

Capt. Charles J. Nelson is on a month's leave at Baguio. Mrs. Nelson and the children preceded him to the mountain resort by several weeks. Lieut. and Mrs. Bradley, of the medical contingent, returned Saturday from the round trip to China and Japan on the Warren. A severe typhoon was encountered on the return trip and the China Sea, which is trying at best, made the passengers most uncomfortable. So severe was the storm that for twenty-four hours no meals were prepared, no fires even made in the galleys. Lieut. and Mrs. Potter, who went up on the Warren, did not return on her, but remained for a more extensive tour of China.

The reception given by the 24th Infantry, Scouts and Medical Corps, to the 1st Field Artillery, which has just come here for station, was a beautiful function, given at the club, which was effectively decorated with plants and flags. Back of the receiving party were the colors of the 24th and of the 1st Field Artillery. Both the Scout and Infantry band furnished music. Supper was served at 11:30, and dancing was continued until a late hour. The guests were received by Col. and Mrs. W. C. Butler and Major and Mrs. Dwight E. Aultman. Practically all the officers and ladies of the garrison attended.

At dinner before the reception Capt. and Mrs. William F. Ennis had as guests the Misses Greeley, Lieut. and Mrs. Ivens Jones, Lieuts. John Greeley and Edwin M. Watson; Lieut. and Mrs. A. J. Davis had Col. and Mrs. Butler and Capt. and Mrs. Austin A. Parker. A beautiful dinner was that of Col. and Mrs. Butler in honor of Major and Mrs. Louise A. Beard, Lieut. and Mrs. Charles L. Mitchell. Capt. and Mrs. Charles Bunker were dinner hosts on Saturday. Lieut. John Greeley spent two days in Manila the first of the week. Lieut. Henry Mitchell, 8th Cav., stationed at Fort McKinley, spent several days on the post recently, en route to Baguio, where he had been attending the polo tournament.

Mrs. Matile and baby, family of Lieut. George A. Matile, 24th Inf., have returned from Baguio. Mrs. John W. French is spending several days in Manila. Mrs. French returned recently from the Southern Islands, where she visited Mrs. Johnson, wife of Major William O. Johnson, at Asturias, Jolo. Mrs. Robert G. Rutherford, Jr., entertained the Ladies' Card Club on Tuesday. Mrs. Wayne H. Crum won the prize.

Colonel Butler and Major Aultman left to-day for Baguio, to which place they were called to confer with General Bell. Lieut. Emery Smith, aid to General Bell, and Lieut. Frederick W. Teague, aid to the Governor General, are on the post, awaiting examination for promotion. Lieut. Pelham D. Glassford is also to be examined.

The officers of the 24th Infantry and of the 1st Field Artillery met on the athletic field in a game of baseball last Saturday. The score was 15-14, favor of the Artillery. Those playing were: Infantry—Major Henry Ripley, Capt. J. B. Shuman, Capt. Robert S. Knox, John French, Lieuts. Walter Weaver, Edwin Watson, Francis H. Farnam and George A. Matile. Artillery—Major D. E. Aultman, Captains William Ennis, Fred Doyle, Charles Bunker, Lieuts. F. W. Teague, L. H. McKinley, John Greeley and Ivens Jones; Louie Beard, George Gay, and William H. Dodds. Lieuts. Harold Huntley and Bowers Davis acted as umpires.

Col. Charles T. Menoher, now adjutant general, Fort William McKinley, is to come to this post for station.

The post has been visited several times lately with flights of flying ants and crickets. The former are particularly annoying, and as the houses and barracks are not screened, life has been a burden for the time being. They drop their wings as they light, and as they come just at dinner time, the food is often ruined. From time to time the rumor has come that screens for Stotsenburg barracks and quarters were on the way; but up to the present, in spite of the prevalence of malaria and winged pests of many kinds, no screens have appeared.

Capt. and Mrs. A. A. Parker gave a beautiful tea last week in honor of Major and Mrs. D. E. Aultman, who have recently come here for station. Receiving with Mrs. Parker were Mrs. Aultman, Mrs. Butler and Mrs. A. J. Davis. Assisting were Mrs. Claude H. Miller, Mrs. Walter Weaver, Misses Dickinson, Shelton and Edith Aultman, the young daughter of Major and Mrs. Aultman. Capt. and Mrs. Claude H. Miller sail on the Logan for an extended leave in China and Japan.

Capt. and Mrs. Fred C. Doyle and little daughter sail on the Logan and will spend several months in China and Japan on leave, sailing for the States in August. Lieut. Whitmon R. Conolly will spend the week-end in Manila and at Antipolo. The big feast in honor of the Virgin is taking place at the latter place this month, and pilgrimages are made by many thousands of Filipinos to the shrine.

CORREGIDOR.

Fort Mills, Corregidor, P.I., May 14, 1913.

Under the direction of Chaplain S. J. Smith the Corregidor minstrel troupe made a pilgrimage to Camp John Hay a few days ago and gave an entertainment at the magnificent amphitheater for the benefit of the Bishop Brent Girls' School Fund. The party reports a delightful trip to that country of "pines and palms." Captain Crissy and family, Lieutenants Wilson and Cottrell, Mrs. Louis Bennett and Miss Long returned from their China trip May 10, and report a very interesting time in China, Japan and Port Arthur. They refuse to call the stormy return trip of the Warren a "joy ride" by any means.

Lieutenants Baird and Doige have been laid up in the post hospital with fever contracted in the Bosque while on duty with mapping detail. They are both back on the job again, trying to subdue the wilds of Mariveles.

Preparations are being made for the building of an aeroplane station at this post. Lieutenant Dargue is to be the "sky pilot." He is making fine progress in the art of "sky scraping." Colonel Ruckman and family are expected daily from their extended trip through China, Japan and Korea.

Rev. A. E. Chinoworth, of the Methodist Publishing House, Manila, guest of Chaplain Smith, addressed the large Gospel service conducted by the Chaplain at the prison stockade last Tuesday evening. Mr. Chinoworth spoke in Tagalog and was greatly appreciated by the inmates. Chaplain Smith has conducted services and buried the dead of this institution ever since his first arrival on this "Rock." Much good has been done through such devoted efforts among the eleven hundred unfortunates who are paying the penalty of the civil law.

Mrs. Kerfoot and little Margaret are guests of Capt. and Mrs. Fisher. Lieut. E. Byer, C.A.C., arrived at post recently for duty. Dr. C. B. Seely, Jr., acting D.S., returned from Grande and is nicely quartered in "Happy Row."

PAINFUL FINGER NAILS CURED

I have suffered from the same trouble [painful finger nails] at different periods of my life. The first time of its occurrence, perhaps twenty-five years ago, after trying home remedies without getting helped, I asked my doctor to prescribe for me, but it was not for a year or more that my nails and fingers were well. The inflammation and suppuration began at the base of the finger nail. Sometimes it was so painful that I had to use a poultice to induce suppuration. After the pus was discharged the swelling would go down until the next period of inflammation, possibly not more than a week or two afterwards. These frequent inflammations resulted in the loss of the nail. I had sometimes as many as three fingers in this state at one time. Perhaps ten years later, I began again to suffer from the same trouble. I began to use Cuticle Soap and Ointment. I did not use the Soap exclusively, but I rubbed the Cuticle Ointment into the base of the nail every night thoroughly, and as often beside as I could. I had not used it but a few weeks before my nails were better. There was no more suppuration, nor inflammation, the nails grew out clean again. One box of Cuticle Ointment was all that I used." (Signed) Mrs. J. J. Horton, Katonah, N. Y., April 13, 1910. On Sept. 21, Mrs. Horton wrote: "I have had no further return of the trouble with my finger nails."
